New Features at Colorfest

Colorfest has been a Mentone tradition for decades. Hosted by the Mentone Area Preservation Association (MAPA), Colorfest features the talents of regional artists and craftsmen, as well as local musicians. In addition, we'll have an array of foods to satisfy your appetite.

Situated at Mentone's Brow Park along North Cool Street—with a stunning westward view across the valley—Colorfest captures the spirit of fall, with the beautiful changing colors and a certain crispness to the air.

This year, we're expanding! We had a tremendous response from vendors, and 94 have been approved to set up booths. With so many wanting to be a part of the festival, the Colorfest Committee was left with a dilemma, since Brow Park only offers 76 booth slots. Not surprisingly, our terrific MAPA volunteers found a solution! Not only will Brow Park be filled with Colorfest vendors, but there will also be additional vendors set up on the lot where the historic Mentone Springs Hotel once stood.

Also new this year will be an array of free kid's games along the brow and at the hotel site, so parents can offer their children a fun distraction between browsing the vendors. Be sure to look for the red 'Kid Stop' signs. Other Saturday children's activities will include face painting, pony rides, and carriage rides.

A 'relaxation station' will offer seating under the covered tent at hotel site, so you can rest a while and then enjoy the festival some more. Be sure to stroll through the nearby 'Scarecrow Holler' and enjoy the creatively-crafted scarecrows. (If you'd like to build a scarecrow and enter the contest, see the application form on page 5.)

Be sure to read our center pull-out section for all the details, including a schedule and a map of town.

MAPA is honored to host Colorfest each year for the local community and thousands of visitors to enjoy. It wouldn't be possible without the dedication and commitment of a host of volunteers who, under the leadership of festival coordinator Kerry Breithaupt, have been working to make this year's festival the best yet!

Be A Tour-ist! Mentone Home Tour & Silent Auction

Saturday & Sunday, October 28 & 29

It's almost time for the Little River Arts Council's Mentone Home Tour and Silent Auction! This will be the tenth year that artists and others in and around Mentone have opened their doors and invited the public to view their homes. All of the homes featured this year are either historic, have art collections, or are homes of artists.

Bill and Christina Wise's historic home, "Summer Haven," built in 1920 by A. A. Wise, will be on the tour, as well as the other buildings on their property—two rental cabins and "Bill's Bunker", which houses his library and impressive collection of military memorabilia. Artist Balpha Noojin will welcome folks to his newly built cottage (two houses down from the Wises). Each of these properties offer spectacular views of DeSoto Falls. Hoot Owl Hollow, owned by Juli Jordan and Pat Martin, is a renovated historic cottage nestled in the woods and filled with art. LRAC secretary Rhea Pirch and her husband Don will welcome folks to Moonglow Farms, with a tour of Don's studio and a visit to their alpacas! Kathy and Jim Park will open their newly renovated cottage near the West Fork of Little River. Their home will feature a temporary installation of the works of several local artists, all of which will be for sale. Also on the tour will be artist John Miller's newly completed guest house, which he has fully decorated with original artwork. Valley Head's Winston Place is on the slate as well. Now serving as a bed and breakfast, it is a well-preserved antebellum home with sweeping porches and views of Lookout Mountain.

Weekend passes cost $8/members or $10/non-members. Tour hours are 10–4 on Saturday; 12–3 on Sunday. (All times are Central.) Passes can be purchased at Mentone Town Hall 30 minutes before the tour starts, and throughout the day.

A silent auction is held in conjunction with the home tour. Auction items will be on display at Town Hall during tour hours. This year, we're doing something different, and holding two different auctions, one on each day. Bidding for Saturday's auction ends at 4:30; Sunday’s auction ends at 3:30. High bidders must be present to win! Bid on a Windsor chair crafted by artist and LRAC board member Wil Henry Cobble, photography, paintings, boat rides, lodging, jewelry, antiques, restaurant meals, books, and more. We are still soliciting items, so if you'd like to donate anything, please let us know!

These events are the main source of funding for LRAC projects, so please come on out, view some inspirational homes, and help support the arts in Mentone. Visit littleriverarts council.org to learn more.

Kelly Leavitt is the president of Little River Arts Council.

Camp Juliette Low in Cloudland, Georgia, traditionally schedules their open house on the weekend of our tour (free to the public.) This is the only camp that was directly established by Girl Scout founder Juliette Gordon Low. Enjoy a walking tour which highlights the 90-year history of the camp. A number of historical photographs and documents will also be available for viewing. Members of the Board of Trustees will be on-hand to lead the tours and answer your questions. Tours will take place Saturday from 11–4 and Sunday from 1–4pm (Eastern). The guided walking tours last about 45 minutes. Visit www.cjl.org.
Commemorating the Trail of Tears

Anyone who has done any amount of driving in DeKalb, Cherokee, or Marshall County must have surely seen the many similar brown “Trail of Tears” signs along the roadways, and wondered how they wound up there.

The signs mark the several historic sites associated with the Cherokees, and the routes they took during their removal 179 years ago. They represent many years of research and planning by various federal, state, and local groups regarding this tragic event.

In May of 1838, the federal government began rounding up Cherokees in the Southeast in preparation for their forceful removal to the West. The Native Americans were then placed in different holding areas that had been established by the government. Among these posts locally was a major facility that gave Fort Payne its name. Rawlinsville, located a few miles north, also held some of the Cherokees.

Another DeKalb County removal facility was situated eight miles south of Fort Payne near the present community of Lebanon. It was here in late September of 1838 that the groups of Native Americans from northeast Alabama and northwest Georgia were assembled into one party. On September 28, they were given the order to move out, but it took until early October for all the party of 1,079 souls to leave the area.

The detachment stretched for miles. There were 60 wagons, and over 600 horses, but many of the Cherokees had to walk the entire route.

These Cherokees were members of the John Benge Detachment, one of 13 different organized groups scheduled for removal. Benge was a Cherokee from Rising Fawn, Georgia, and was the son-in-law of George Lowrey of Willstown. While a few of the Cherokees from North Carolina, Tennessee, and Georgia, made the journey via the Tennessee River, the Benge party travelled the entire length of some 800 miles by land.

Recognizing the importance of this tragic event, in 1987 Congress established the Trail of Tears National Historic Trail. It is administered by the National Parks Service, Trails Division, of Santa Fe, New Mexico. In 2005, the Parks Service awarded a grant to a group of researchers from the Alabama Chapter of the Trail of Tears Association, who used original surveyor maps and other primary source documents to locate and track the route taken by the Benge Detachment. The report, “Alabama Collection of Camps, Forts, Emigrating Depots, and Travel Routes Used During the Cherokee Removal of 1838-1839,” is a 640-page document detailing the Benge route from Fort Payne to the Tennessee border.

The researchers then secured funding from the Parks Service for the brown original Trail of Tears signs to be erected from Fort Payne to Marshall County, a distance of over 35 miles. The result was over 60 signs, marking not only the removal route, but also other sites associated with the Cherokees, such as the Andrew Ross House, Cabin Site, and Willstown Mission Cemetery sites in Fort Payne.

Olivia Baxter Cox of Landmarks of DeKalb County supervised the erection of the signs in DeKalb County. Labor was furnished by DeKalb County road employees.

The historic route has attracted visitors from many parts of the country and Canada. To take the driving tour, it is best to begin at the Fort Payne Cabin Site on Gault Avenue, which contains markers telling of its role in the construction of Fort Payne. Then head east on Gault (US 11) and follow the signs eight miles to the present community of Lebanon, where the Cherokees assembled before their departure.

From Lebanon, follow the signs up Sand Mountain, across the mountain, and down to the Five Points community in Marshall County. The signs end here, where the trail is inundated by waters of Lake Guntersville. A portion of the trail picks (cont’d on page 6)

The MDA Professional Group submitted the 2016 audit to the town council at our regular September meeting. The Town operates on a budget of approximately $260,000. Revenue sources include sales and lodging taxes, property tax, TVA in lieu tax, gasoline tax, licenses, and donations. In the two previous years, we were able to pave some streets. This year, we do not have sufficient extra funds to pave. At this time, the town owes no money. The camps paid off the loan on the police Tahoe. At the September meeting, the council voted to raise the sales and lodging tax a penny, starting November 1. This will bring Mentone in line with most of the municipalities in the county. Hopefully, this will increase revenues sufficiently enough so we can invest in infrastructure. Last year, the town considered applying for a TAP grant to build a sidewalk but did not have enough money for matching funds.

The equipment parked across from Little River Hardware is being used to drill for a new water line under Little River at the bridge. A water line cannot be hung below the new bridge.

Thanks to B & B Crane for resetting a picnic bench at Brow Park and a rock column at the Mentone sign coming up the mountain, at no cost to the town.

ALDOT Area Operations Engineer A. R. Camp has responded to letter from the Mentone Business Association, dated July 31, 2017, regarding the speed limit and speed limit signs in Mentone. I had spoken to Mr. Camp about MBA concerns. Below is his response:

"The speed zone signing entering town from this direction dictates that the speed reduces to 35 mph 400 feet north of CR-89 (ordinance 110 dated August 3, 1981). The current signing does not reflect this and will be corrected by ALDOT personnel. Given the steep grade and the trucks climbing the grade, it is not practical to lower this speed limit (currently 45 mph) further down the mountain.

"The current signing does not match the ordinance referenced above. ALDOT personnel will move the signs to match this ordinance (35 mph should be from CR-89 to Dempsey Street and 45 mph from Dempsey Street to the southern city limits). A speed study was conducted to determine if the speed limits are appropriate. Based upon the results of the speed study, the speed limit should be raised through the 35 mph to at least 40 mph; however, at this time we are recommending the speed zone remain 35 mph per the ordinance."

Letter From The Editor

We who live in and near our beloved town of Mentone may have things in "common", but it's when we come together in unity that we truly have a "community". For such a small town, we have a gratifying (and surprising!) number of organizations made up of people who come together—in unity—to make our community stronger.

Local organizations support: the preservation of Mentone's history and way of life; the future of our children through education; basic needs of survival; spiritual and social needs; the creative mind through the arts; a love for beauty and growing from the earth; our local businesses; and the expansion of knowledge.

Many of our local organizations will have a presence at Colorfest. I encourage you to get to know these folks who often work tirelessly to continue the age-old tradition of serving others. If our little town didn't have these active groups, we'd be just another little town, with common aspects, but without the soul that makes Mentone so evidently special.

I look forward to my new role as editor of The Groundhog, supporting the mission of the Mentone Area Preservation Association (MAPA), which publishes the paper, while also supporting the many groups who make Mentone a rich community. In a time when it seems as if the world is becoming more divisive, we have a sort of sanctuary here—let's celebrate the unity which has been so strongly nurtured through the years.

The Groundhog is published monthly by the Mentone Area Preservation Association, MAPA and was first conceived on Groundhog Day, 1982, and organized April 5, 1982, for the purpose of preserving and protecting the heritage, natural environment and other unique qualities of life in the Mentone area, and is chartered as a 501c3 non-profit corporation.
MAPA Supports the Tradition of Giving
by Anna Mae Horn

The mission of the Mentone Area Preservation Association is to preserve and protect the heritage, natural environment and other unique qualities of life in the Mentone area.

Webster defines many words; however, their interpretation is a completely separate notion. Even though an organization’s mission may stay the same, the meaning of its immediate goals may be interpreted differently and pursued in various ways by its changing board over the years.

Mentone has numerous outstanding attributes. When one speaks of ‘preserving and protecting’ the ‘natural heritage’ and ‘unique qualities of life’ in the area, what does that mean to you? To the current Mentone Area Preservation Association board, it means helping to maintain all of Mentone, including nurturing the giving spirit of the area. One recent example of local generosity: two weeks before school started, one person inquired about helping Moon Lake students with school supplies. That led to a heartfelt response from a small group of locals, and several children were provided for. With only a few calls and a couple of emails, a need was filled.

MAPA wants to carry on this generous community spirit evident since its founding. At the September board meeting, the MAPA Board of Directors voted to approve a grant request for local outreach programs. St. Joseph’s church, as a part of the North Alabama Food Bank system, oversees the programs. Other local churches, along with various community members, give of their time, their funds, and miscellaneous donated items to support the programs as best they can, but the need is large.

One of the outreach programs is designed to help the general community with immediate hardships in dire situations. It prevents utilities from being disconnected, helps with transportation for medical care, and the like. Applicants must meet guidelines to be approved. Recipients of services often volunteer around town, as they are able, in appreciation of the kindness shown to them.

The other program is called the Snack-in-a-Backpack Program. It sends two days’ worth of healthy, non-perishable food home with local school children in their backpacks. It also provides two days of food per week in the summer for children whose caregivers receive help at the local food bank. MAPA is honored to help preserve the quality of life for these students.

The board encourages MAPA members and the public in general to consider helping these worthwhile causes. Time is a precious commodity and is most appreciated by the food bank and other outreach programs. Reach out and help someone today! Simply call or stop by St. Joseph’s Monday through Thursday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. to see how you can help.

Southerners are known for their kindness, especially in others’ most difficult moments. The people of Mentone and the surrounding areas are no different. MAPA plans to continue to carry on the heritage of helping others as part of its mission. Another wonderful part of local heritage that MAPA is continuing is Colorfest! Be sure to join us at Brow Park and the old Mentone Springs Hotel site for our annual festival. Many events will be going on around town to help celebrate. MAPA is proud to continue this fun tradition. See you there!

MAPA meets the first Tuesday evening of each month at 6 p.m. at Moon Lake Community Library. All MAPA members are encouraged to attend, and the public is invited to observe. Come early and check out a book!

Update:
MACC constructs entryway, implements artist-in-residence program at Fort Payne High School
by Randy Grider

Despite a rainy summer that included the lingering remnants of Hurricane Irma, the Mentone Arts & Cultural Center (MACC) Board of Directors managed a first step into making the center a reality. Utilizing a grant from the Tillotson-Menlo Charitable Foundation and the Alabama Council on the Arts, MACC contracted with an area engineering firm and local contractors to build an entryway along Alabama Highway 117 that provides vehicle access onto the property where the facility will be constructed. This included a state-required 120-foot culvert along the right-of-way. Landscaping and signage will be the next step of the MACC entryway construction and design. This is a big step for MACC as it will allow us to drive onto the property. In addition, it allows us to utilize the property for events prior to actual construction, if we so choose.

Plans are to begin construction of the first phase of the facility in Spring 2018. The estimated cost of the first phase is $800,000 and will include the multi-purpose room with a stage, classroom and restroom, as well as a dried-in wing to house the facility’s electrical infrastructure.

We are in the process of raising capital. We have several options for donors to give, including naming opportunities for various sections of the facility. We encourage anyone interested in honoring a loved one or someone who has had an impact on this area to give me a call (256-674-3366) or email me (mentoneartscenter@gmail.com) for more information. As we near the end of the year, many people start thinking about charities they would like to donate to. We definitely encourage everyone to consider the Mentone Arts & Cultural Center—we are a 501(C)3 organization.

MACC recently implemented its first educational outreach program. Nationally acclaimed actor Sandra Lafferty, who has more than 50 movie and television roles to her credit, including Walk the Line and The Hunger Games, is MACC’s theatre artist-in-residence. She will be working with the Fort Payne High School Drama Department, helping instructor Paul Crawford and his students with monologue assignments this school year. I would like to thank multi-talented Sandra Lafferty, Fort Payne Schools Superintendent Jimmy Cunningham, and drama teacher Paul Crawford for partnering with MACC.

MACC plans to expand its artist-in-residence program to other art-related disciplines to work with other area schools. I encourage any educator in the area who would like to find out more or establish a program in an arts-related field to contact me. We will work to find professionals and make it happen. MACC will have a booth at the upcoming Colorfest festival. We encourage anyone who wants to know more about the center and its future program to stop by and talk to us.

MBA Mix: It’s Fall Y’all!

The busy fall season in Mentone has started early, with scores of folks coming to the mountain to get away from hot weather, hurricanes, wild fires and the fast-paced lives wherever they call home. They come here for the scenic beauty, quaint shops, good food, and arts and crafts, and take back home a warm place in their hearts for our little town and its people.

September’s annual “Outdoor Movie Night” was a great success, with an estimated crowd of 150 folks. Among those attending were several evacuees who had come from Florida to escape Hurricane Irma. Their experience in Mentone “blew them away” (pardon the phrase). They lingered around the bonfire after the showing of “Southern Heart,” and talked at length about their time spent in Mentone. “We’ll never forget this,” they said. They came as strangers and left as friends.

Mentone’s favorite festival, Colorfest, is the 3rd weekend of October, and the Mentone Business Association will once again be hosting the “Scavenger Hunt.” This is a fun way for visitors to get to know the many shopping venues in the village of Mentone. A huge thanks to MBA secretary Lisa Schad for coordinating this event, along with MBA member Debra Fey.

Since the MBA is not a “non-profit,” and takes no dues, we generally don’t handle any money. However, twice during movie nights we have sold soft drinks/water in an effort to raise money. First, we had the idea of establishing a “Mentone Relief Fund” to help build public toilets. We raised about $76, but that project hit a dead-end and the money was used to help offset the cost for the next year’s movie night (it costs $150 to hire the projectionist and his equipment each time). This year we made $34 in water sales. This money will go toward September’s “porto-john” rent at the pavilion where the movie was shown. MBA members cover all other costs associated with the event.

Many thanks to our active MBA members, especially those who helped make movie night such a success: Sharon Habin, popcorn professional; Cynthia Stinson, for her generosity in the use of the Mentone Inn Pavilion (yet again); Lisa Schad and Kelly Leavitt, doing whatever needed doing.

Looking for a way to get involved? Got some great ideas? How about joining the MBA? We meet the 2nd Monday each month and there are no dues. Join us at our next meeting, October 9 at 6 p.m. at the Moon Lake Community Library. Find us on the web at MentoneBusiness.com, or visit our Facebook page.

MerF Community House - October

My boards may be a little creaky and my paint a little flaky but I am full of life. I continue to open my doors to the young and the wise so my walls are full of joy, laughter and learning.

Fall is a season of change as the beautiful leaves on the mountain transition from green to nature's beautiful fall hues. MerF is having some changes this fall, too, as senior lunches are being held at Moon Lake Baptist Church while the MerF house gets some much-needed foundation support and renovations. Thank you, Moon Lake, for providing a place for this fall's gatherings. A great meal and fellowship will be offered at the church from one of MerF's many supporters and friends each Wednesday through November 15. The meal is served at 11:30 a.m., so join us for great food, fun fellowship and toe-tapping entertainment. Be on the lookout for efforts to help with necessary improvements to the MerF house. Information will soon be available on MerF's website, on our Facebook page and in local businesses, so stay tuned.

October brings MAPA's Colorfest again to Brow Park in Mentone. Stop by the MerF booth to say hello and to pick up some great “Leave Me in Mentone” gifts for you, your friends and your family! MerF will have mugs, baseball caps, ornaments, long- and short-sleeved tees, and sweatshirts. There will also be a new item created by the Moon Lake Elementary School students, so come check it out. These items are also on sale at DeSoto State Park's country store, Little River Hardware, Moon Lake Trading (mugs and ornaments only) and from Sarah Wilcox. All proceeds benefit MerF and its programs.

Back up at Lake Guntersville State Park, which has constructed a walking trail with interpretive signs on a small portion of the route.

In early October of 1838, the weary travelers arrived at Gunter’s Landing at the southern bend of the Tennessee River, where they crossed on a ferry. It took three days for them all to be transported across the river and resume their journey. The route they took from there approximates present U.S. 431. Small Trail of Tears signs mark the detachment's trip through Huntsville, where it stopped to get water at the big spring.

The party then travelled through Tennessee, into Kentucky, and as far north as Illinois before turning west at Missouri. They arrived at their destination in what is now northeast Oklahoma on January 11, 1839. There had been three births and 33 deaths on their march toward the setting sun that took 106 days.

Similar signs have been erected in nearby Cherokee County marking routes taken by Cherokees to get to the removal posts. Jim Lewis, Cherokee County historian, headed this project. All nine states involved in the removal have identified trails taken by the Cherokees and placed signs similar to the ones here.

Because of changes in road locations over the years, some detours are necessary, but the overall route from Fort Payne to Lake Guntersville is basically the same as the one taken 179 years ago. Some of the route is on the actual trail, while a few unpaved portions can still be seen.

Several other sites across the state associated with the removal have been marked with signs or exhibits. The Elliott Community Center in Gadsden has a permanent interpretive exhibit sponsored by the Etowah Historical Society. A small exhibit explaining the Benga Detachment's journey through Guntersville is located at the Guntersville Historical Society's headquarters on Blount Avenue. Gunter’s Landing, predecessor of the present city, was a hub of activity during removal of not only the Cherokees, but the Creeks as well.

The City of Decatur recently erected a number of interpretive signs at Rhodes Park relating to Water Routes taken by the Cherokees through that town. The 2018 national conference of the Trail of Tears will be held near the site in 2018.

A major interpretive site is being developed at Tuscumbia Landing in extreme northwest Alabama. A wealth of information regarding removal of the Cherokees and the routes they took is available on the Internet. A number of excellent books have recently been published about the removal, including Steve Inskeep's Jacksonland: President Andrew Jackson, Cherokee Chief John Ross, and a Great American Land Grab. To find locations of historic Cherokee sites, see Vicki Rozema’s Footsteps of the Cherokee: A Guide to the Eastern Homelands of the Cherokee Nation. It lists several local sites in northeast Alabama, including those in DeKalb, Cherokee, Jackson, and Marshall Counties.

This area of northeast Alabama is fortunate to have access to the best collection of Native American history in the state. The nearby Northeast Alabama Community College Archives and Special Collections near Rainsville house the Gail Tate King Native American Research Center. It contains over 700 books centered on Southeastern Native American Tribes, anthropology, archaeology, and Trail of Tears history. It also features maps, an extensive collection of microfilm, and many other primary source material and has drawn researchers from as far away as New Hampshire. Contact Blake Williams at 256.228.6601 for the hours of operation.

Did you know that each Friday, 15% of our children at Moon Lake Elementary School receive a special package to bring home—a backpack chock filled with nutritious food? This backpack gives these children enough food to carry them through the weekend. The snack is lovingly put together and delivered by several volunteers at St. Joseph’s-on-the-Mountain Episcopal Church, here in Mentone.

Although St. Joseph’s runs and coordinates the Backpack Program, we would be the first to say that this program does not start nor end with us. The program is built and strengthened by the generosity of many within the community.

Recently, the employees of Plasman Corp. in Fort Payne gathered a large amount of supplies and food for the program. Their food drive was headed up by Krista Linman and the Social Committee at Plasman Corp. Not only did the Social Committee supply the program with food, but also zip lock bags as containers. Thankfully, the food gathered by Plasman Corporation will be enough to supplement the food in our backpacks for many weeks.

Next, we received notice from the Mentone Area Preservation Association (MAPA) with the news that they have awarded the Backpack Program a grant of $1,500. Due to the generosity of MAPA’s grant, the cost of Snacks in a Backpack will be covered for an additional year. This funding allows us time to develop additional funding to strengthen the program in years to come.

What a wonderful testament to our community when businesses, churches, agencies, and schools come together to make our community strong, healthy, and happy.

The success of this program is guaranteed by the gracious help of many of our local churches who also generously contribute to the Snack in a Backpack program. Special thanks go to the Mentone United Methodist Church, and Cove Road Baptist Church who support the effort each month. Other churches who graciously and consistently give are Moon Lake Baptist Church, Valley Head Baptist Church, Mentone Community Church, as well as other agencies and individuals.

We believe the success and security of the Backpack Program is due to the concern of our community to build strong and healthy children.

Sacred Harp Singing at Area Landmark

Do you love one-room school houses and sacred harp singing? Landmarks of DeKalb County brings the two together every other year. This year, they will host a singing on Sunday, October 8, at Council Bluff School, DeKalb County’s last standing one-room schoolhouse (listed on the Alabama Register of Landmarks and Heritage). The singing begins at 2 p.m. Council Bluff School is on a small, unmarked road off CR 120 atop Sand Mountain. From Mentone, travel west on AL Hwy. 117. to CR 120 (first CR on the left after crossing I-59) and turn left. Proceed for approximately 1.6 miles, then turn left on a small, unmarked road (just before the yellow sign warning of sharp curve ahead). A brown Council Bluff School sign is at the turn—the school is down this road on the right.
When the 130-year-old Mentone Springs Hotel burned to the ground in March of 2014, one of our most striking historic buildings disappeared forever. Now the Mentone Inn, the Hitching Post, Moon Lake School, and St. Joseph’s- on-the-Mountain Church are almost all that survive from the town’s public architectural past. But one other iconic structure remains, and not even Mrs. O’Leary’s cow, with a blow torch, could it bring down: the Miller Dam at DeSoto Falls.

Built by A. A. (Arthur Abernathy) Miller in 1924, the approximately 20-foot-high dam created an impoundment that provided the water power needed to generate electricity to light homes and businesses in the area. It also created a small lake about two miles long in a section of the Little River stretching from behind DeSoto Falls all the way north to Camp Skyline on Highway 117, in Mentone. For nearly 100 years, the impounded river has been providing opportunities for fishing, boating, and swimming fun for generations of residents and visitors. And when one considers that a chief characteristic of concrete is that it almost never stops curing, thus getting stronger and stronger as the years pass, the Miller Dam may be with us for a very long time indeed.

Mentone resident Bill Wise is A. A. Miller’s grandson. He and his wife Christina live at Summer Haven, a striking home situated on the stone cliffs above the pool that forms at the bottom of DeSoto Falls. Miller built the home at the same time he built the dam, and it features an 18-inch airspace between the outer and inner walls to provide a novel form of insulation against the elements.

Wise remembers his grandfather as someone whom we would call a go-getter today. “He was an entrepreneur who had built several power-generating dams in Virginia and West Virginia. But the ice that would form in the winters behind his dams was a constant source of problems. He wanted to work in a warmer climate, so he came to Chattanooga in the early part of the last century looking for promising locations.” Before long, he had discovered that DeSoto Falls on the Little River (sometimes known in the old days as the DeSoto River) might provide a good spot for a hydroelectric facility.

Miller arrived in Fort Payne driving a Stanley Steamer automobile. It had the distinction of being the first in Summers County, West Virginia, where he had been living before coming to Alabama. The trip south that he made in 1906 must have been an epic undertaking, but once he got here, Miller’s creativity and drive took over. Over the years he built an ice plant in Fort Payne, and owned and operated a phone company and a Chevrolet dealership in Valley Head. He built a steam-powered electric plant in 1921 in Fort Payne, and that town’s first apartment building, in 1937. Clearly, A. A. Miller hated an idle moment like roofers hate July.

Once he identified the location for a dam at the falls, he needed an access road through the woods to bring in supplies and workers. Previously, the only way to reach the falls was via an old Indian trail. “He built the first road from the brow down to the falls,” says Wise. “To me, that was one of the greatest things he ever did.”

Miller was not a trained engineer; he got his Schoolin’ by Doin’, not at the College of Knowledge, and quickly acquired a body of experience as he constructed dams in the Virginias. “He was a big reader and studier,” says Wise. For instance, Miller read extensively about Paris’ Cathedral of Notre-Dame, and the “flying buttresses” which helped strengthen and support the massive walls of the church. So, he incorporated buttresses into the DeSoto Falls dam.

Mr. Miller began by building a coffer dam, about ¾ of a mile upriver from the present dam, in order to hold back the river’s water during construction. Sharp-eyed folks can still see the base of that dam as they float by. Next, he drilled holes in the bedrock above the falls and inserted railroad rails to serve as massive rebar. His workers then created wooden forms around the rails and poured concrete into those molds. A large pipe channeled water down an almost 100-foot drop to a small building on a concrete pad where a hydrostatic dynamotor harnessed the power of the falling water and produced electricity. You can still see the pad where the generator was housed. Over time the height of the dam has been increased and a relief spillway added. Many area folks will remember the diving platform which stood at the dam for many years. For about 10 years, the low-power DC current Miller produced was supplied to customers in Collinsville, Fort Payne, Valley Head, Mentone, and Menlo, Georgia. Power was available from sundown until 10pm, and on Wednesday afternoons so people could do their weekly ironing. It has the distinction of being the first such hydroelectric power generating facility in North Alabama. The job was so well done that some of the power poles in the system were still in use by the Sand Mountain Electric Cooperative as recently as the early 2000s. And in spite of almost 100 years of floods and storms, the little dam at the falls still seems as solid as the day it was finished.

Generating electricity was only part of the reason Miller built the dam. In partnership with Piffier Smith, of Baltimore, the DeSoto Falls Development Company was created. Plats around the falls area were laid out and a promotional effort was begun to sell lots. Recreation was key, and the two men brought in tons of sand to create a small beach for swimmers to use. But time and the ravages of the volatile river have erased any trace of the beach, and the 1929 stock market crash that began the Great Depression caused the development scheme to collapse. Miller sold the property to Alabama Power and, soon after, the State of Alabama acquired it and created DeSoto State Park.

A 26-year Army veteran who did two tour tours of duty in Viet Nam and earned a degree in engineering and a masters in international relations, Bill Wise has nothing but admiration for his ancestor. “If my grandfather could see the crowds that flock to the dam and the falls today, I know it would bring a big smile to his face,” muses Wise. “He’d be very happy that his scheme has worked so well.”

“Aloha” From Ms. Paula’s Surf Shack!

August came and found Moon Lake students surfing into a new year in the Fine Arts classroom. I was ‘totally stoked’ about the new art techniques I had learned this summer and couldn’t wait to dive in with my students.

Students were first introduced to a “sea” of incredible artwork by a group of painters known as the “Florida Highwaymen,” a group of twenty-six African American landscape artists in Florida. Self-taught and self-mentoring, they created a body of work of over 200,000 paintings during the late 50s and 60s. Mostly from the Fort Pierce area, they painted landscapes of the natural wetlands and seascapes in Florida and made a living selling them from the trunk of a car as they traveled down Florida’s A1A and US 1 highways. Moon Lake students really made waves with their seascapes and ocean scenes in the style of the Florida Highwaymen, using pastels with baby oil. (And yes, I did say baby oil!) Students then caught a wave with a side trip to the islands of Hawaii to look at sea life and ocean scenes. While checking out the scenery, students also learned that Hawaiians paint pictures with their hands when they do their native dance, the hula. The Kindergarteners’ and first graders’ fish pictures turned out just beachy! The sounds of Hawaiian music could be heard, with a few of our own ukulele chords added. I have to say, the most fun had by all students was learning about the state fish of Hawaii—the humuhumunukunukuapuaa—and singing his song. Someone said it sounded romantic, like a walk on the beach at Waikiki (NOT!) Actually the name means “a little trigger fish with a nose like a pig!”

So, until next time from the Fine Arts classroom—Hang Ten and Cowabunga Dudes!

Nestled in the woods atop Lookout Mountain, near Mentone, Alabama, this quaint little chapel is surrounded by ferns, forest and flowers. The chapel is a scaled version of traditional Appalachian churches of days gone by. Stained glass windows filtering soft forest sunrays and soft organ music accent an ambience fitting the wedding ceremony. Inside, wooden pews will seat approximately 60 guests.

Linda Patterson, owner of the chapel, said the idea for it began with a bell, and now that bell rings as newlyweds exit the door of the chapel.

Friday Night Food & Music

An old Colorfest tradition returns this year, with music at the Town Square, where MAPA will present Jerry Bloom & Friends from 6:30–9:30 p.m. Jerry & Pixie Bloom have been singing since they were kids. He enjoys singing Neil Young and she enjoys singing Stevie Nicks. Pixie began singing in church while Jerry sang in bars. Originally from Indiana, Jerry even sang in Las Vegas for years. Pixie is from Louisiana but they both fell in love with beautiful Mentone many years ago. Jerry and Pixie will be playing with Charlotte and Hollis Gentry. Warm yourself by the fire pit, and enjoy chili, corn bread and hot apple cider served by Fontana Stinson.

Scavenger Hunt

A family-friendly way to discover what Mentone’s businesses have to offer is our 4th annual Scavenger Hunt, sponsored by the Mentone Business Association.

Here’s how to play!

• Pick up a game sheet at the MAPA booth at Brow Park, then set out on a quest to find all the items on the list.
• Using the clues on the game sheet, find as many businesses as you can (all business are within walking distance of the festival.)
• Once you find the business, you must find a “treasure” item that is also clued on the game sheet.
• When you’ve found both the business and the “treasure”, ask the owner to initial your game sheet.
• The owner will then give you a small gift of some kind (one reward per team, at the owner’s discretion).

Once you have completed the Scavenger Hunt, return your completed list to the MAPA booth by 3 p.m. on Sunday. Every player/team that completes the list will be eligible for a Grand Prize of $50, courtesy of MBA! (If no player completes the whole game, the winner will be based on a drawing of those who completed the most “finds”.

Have fun visiting Mentone’s businesses!

Record Number of Vendors
by Anna Mae Horn

With so many vendors set up, there is bound to be something to appeal to everyone. All booths will feature handmade items. Woodcrafts are always popular. This year, there will be art and furniture, as well as trains, candleholders, frames, and other items carved from wood.

For the musically inclined, there will be handcrafted dulcimers and flutes available. For those of us who can not make music ourselves, there will be wind chimes that create beautiful melodies.

For the art lovers, there will be a wide variety of selections. Artists will have original paintings in several mediums, as well as photographs. There will be signs and accessories, and possibly even some decorated ostrich eggs.

Jewelry fanatics probably already know this is a great place for buying one-of-a-kind pieces. Several vendors will offer jewelry, and each one is unique. From antique spoon bracelets to necklaces with freshwater pearls, you will find the perfect piece to reflect your own personality. There will also be jewelry crafted from leather, copper, silver, and more to please the most specific shoppers.

Outdoor enthusiasts will surely enjoy the bird houses, bird feeders, and other yard art to beautify your lawn or patio. Candles and body bath items will be available. Even a wide variety of fabrics and materials will be on hand: everything from burlap and denim to macramé and quilts. There will be books, baskets, and brooms. Everyone will enjoy something. Be sure to remember the holidays are close at hand. You might see something unique a loved one will enjoy. This is the perfect time to shop, and enjoy yourself at the same time!

One of this year’s new features is the “Kid Stop” areas, where children and parents can take a break from browsing and just have some good ol’ fun. Watch for the signs along the brow on N. Cool St. and at the old hotel site! Enjoy tossing a witch’s hat, mini-golf, and more.

On Saturday, children will enjoy carriage rides around the festival area and pony rides at the old hotel site. Want to look like a butterfly or a tiger? a skeleton or a super hero? Face painting is always a fun activity! (Note: these activities are not free.)

Farmers Market
Support local farmers! The Mentone Farmers Market will be open on Saturday and Sunday during festival hours, selling fresh food, breads, and other homemade items.

The Hitching Post’s Newest Shop

The Hitching Post is Mentone’s oldest mercantile building. Built around 1900, it has seen generations of folks and business establishments come and go. It was the home of the local town market for many years, and in the 1930s the second story was added, where dances were held on Saturday nights. The addition was constructed by a bridge builder, so the floor was made to sway with the movement of the dancers. (Some old timers considered these dances to be “scandalous!”)

The Gourdie Shop holds the distinction of being Mentone’s oldest established business, having opened in 1983. In its early years, the shop exclusively sold “gourdies”—owner Sharon Barron Burke’s whimsical hand-painted gourds, which were each signed and dated. These days, the shop offers a unique and wide variety of goods, from clothing, jewelry and hats, to decorative items and ethnic art. It’s a great place to shop for Halloween costumes!

At the corner of the building (Hwy. 117 and CR 89), Sheri Zimmerman, locally known as “Magnolia”, opened her shop, Magnolia Rose & Co., in spring of this year. On a recent Sunday morning, I enjoyed a front porch chat with Magnolia and she told me about her shop, and her dreams.

“I always knew I would own a shop in this space,” she begins. “I love this building. I approached owner Doreen Crow Waters, when Homer was not well, and let her know that I was available to work with her. She took me up on it, and I worked with her at Crow’s Nest Antiques for three years.

“Doreen always knew that I wanted this space to be mine one day,” Magnolia continued. “When Doreen closed her shop last year, I went by her house, knocked on her door, and made my proposal. “I used to sit in my living room and share my dreams with my friends,” she explained. “This was the year for this dream to manifest. This is what I’m to do. I love to decorate, I love to buy and sell, I love to talk with people.”

Magnolia owned a similar store called Rose of Sharon in Crossville, TN, from 1990 until she moved to Mentone in 2001. This is her fourth business in Mentone, including Magnolia Joe’s (also in the Hitching Post building, where the fudge shop currently is). She’s known for her eclectic style and has a knack for finding unusual items and repurposing or refinishing them.

“I’ve always been drawn to old doors, shutters and windows, bringing new life to them.” In addition to selling items that she has repurposed, three other local vendors sell their vintage products on consignment.

Other goods in the shop include antiques, accessories, home décor, essential oils, and organic skin care. “I’d like to get into selling organic teas and other locally-made organic products,” she explains.

“As I grow, I want to reinvest my money to include more products from local artists and vendors.” Magnolia currently sells her own artwork, as well as her daughter’s (Sunshine Girl Designs), and the work of several local artists, including potter Max Mitchell, stained glass artist Chuck Peters, sculptor Jim Marbut, and barn quilt painter Don Pirch. Soy candles by Theres Cox, soaps, scarves and hats from Zenflower Organics, and wool items from Cheri Miller are also available. Lauren Haynes of Wooden Spoon Herbs collects herbs in the woods around her Little River home in Cloudland and all along Lookout Mountain to create tinctures and wildflower skin cream which are sold at Magnolia Rose & Co. (and other stores as far away as New York City). Local author and farmer Tema Flanagan’s book, “Corn” is also for sale.

A bit of the magic of Mentone revealed itself as we neared the end of our conversation. Magnolia told that when she first moved to Mentone, Bernise Crow and artist Lucy Mitchell were the first two women she met. Local potter Katie Bird Cobble stopped by just then for her first visit to the shop. She picked up one of the first items she saw—a clay sculpture made by Lucy Mitchell—and exclaimed with joy, “Oh, I remember the day Lucy visited my pottery studio and made this very piece! I’m buying it!”

Magnolia Rose & Co. is open Thursday through Monday. During the winter months, the shop will be open Friday through Sunday. You can find Magnolia Rose on Facebook.

Two other businesses are currently housed at the Hitching Post. Mountain Properties, owned by Broker Rhonda Bruckno, shares the front porch with Magnolia Rose. Their web site is almountainproperties.com. Aunt Fanny’s Fudge sells homemade fudge, baked goods and drinks. This shop is located in the rear of the building and is open on Saturdays. You can find Aunt Fanny’s Fudge on Facebook.

Patchwork Beauty: Food for the Soul and Health for the Body

Driving toward Mentone on Lookout Mountain Parkway in mid-September, I saw the first signs of fall. The red tones were lightly settling in on the dogwood leaves. Dogwood trees tell us a story of the seasons. They usher in spring with their showy white blooms. And just as the white blooms in spring reflect the warming of the days, the scarlet foliage of dogwood is indicative of cooling nights and the grand display of fall.

Dogwood’s folklore has a rich history. The “blooms” are known to depict the crucifixion of Christ. It appears to bloom in a cross formation, with symbolic bloodstains at the end of the petals and a thorny crown-like image at the center of the blossom. Dogwood flowers are medicinal and were used by Native Americans to achieve a soothing tonic effect on the body and stomach, similar to chamomile flowers. Native Americans, Civil War soldiers, and homesteaders chewed dogwood twigs to keep their teeth white and they used the splintered dogwood twigs as a natural toothbrush. The dried bark is the most commonly used medicinal part of the tree, best known to aid in subsiding malarial symptoms. Sourwood’s colorful display is not far behind dogwood’s fall color. Sourwood is also called the honey tree because it blooms in late summer, providing sweet nectar for the honeybees. In the fall, the sap settles into the roots of sassafras, creating medicinal benefits and a culinary treat.

Sassafras, an overall tonic for the body, aids in liver function and has been used as a folk remedy to prevent or treat cold and flu symptoms. Sassafras root was the main ingredient in root beer until the mid 1900s. It got a bad reputation when studies were conducted about the carcinogenic nature of the safrole contained within the root. Since safrole is oil-based, though, boiling up the root for a delicious tea of red maple leaves and inner bark is said to help greatly with hot flashes. A tea of red maple leaves and inner bark is said to help greatly with hot flashes.

Tulip poplar leaves turn a deep to golden yellow. Poplar is known to be a great wood for craftsmen to carve. It was used by the Cherokee for canoe building because of its fine-grained, long, straight trunks and lack of knot producing by low-growing limbs. Medicinally, the Cherokee were said to use the inner bark of the root and trunk, as well as the leaves, as a remedy for fever, rheumatic fever, and indigestion. Oak comes in a multitude of fall colors, though most range from deep red to a reddish brown. Oak is known to have been a staple of civilizations, past and present, for building homes, furniture, and barrels, in addition to being used as medicine. The inner bark of the limbs of both red and white oak is known as a wonderful folk remedy, and is used as a poultice/compress for skin disorders and rashes such as poison oak, eczema and psoriasis. It is also known to be a styptic (it slows bleeding) and the tea is said to counteract poisons, such as accidental ingestion of poisonous plants or snakebite venom.

So what is it that causes the beautiful patchwork display? As the cool sets in and fewer hours of sunlight are available, the trees respond by stopping the photosynthesis process of making food. As a result, the production of chlorophyll stops. Chlorophyll is what provides the green color to leaves. Pigments called carotene and xanthophyll create the yellow and orange color in the leaves. These pigments are within the leaves year-round, but are masked by the chlorophyll. Red leaves, though, do not contain the pigment anthocyanin throughout the year; instead it is synthesized during the breaking of the chlorophyll. Anthocyanin pigment is said to aid the tree in keeping its leaves longer, in order to get more nutrients, because it protects the leaves from sun damage and lower temperatures.

The beautiful miracle of nature and its interdependent dance continues to be awe-inspiring, to bless us with beauty and to nourish us through all seasons here on Lookout Mountain. As much as I will miss the blooms of summer and swins in the river, I am looking forward to the crisp mountain air, bonfires and bundling up for a canoe ride down the river to see the colors reflecting off the water. I am eager for a breathtaking autumn after a year with plenty of rain and moderate temperatures. I trust Mentone will bring a bountiful harvest of blessings, beauty, and joy for many this fall.

MEDICARE 2018 OPEN ENROLLMENT

by Lynn Hixson

Each year, when Medicare Open Enrollment comes around, it is the time to double-check your Medicare and prescription drug plan coverage for the following year. This year, Medicare Enrollment for the 2018 season is from October 15 to December 7. The 15th is on Sunday this year, but we will be available Monday, Oct. 16, to assist you. Even if your current Medicare plan and its benefits are working for you, it is a good idea to check your plan every year. The only way to save on your health care costs is to annually compare your current plan to other plans that will be available to you for the 2018 enrollment, either offered by your current provider or by other health insurance companies.

The first step is to re-assess your health care needs. Make a list of your current medicine and note the changes that have occurred since your last enrollment. If you get any notices from your plan provider about changes to your plan, even if you would like to keep your current plan, it may be time to take a closer look. You may be able to get more benefits at lower costs. Plan benefits change every year and it doesn’t hurt to check out and compare all benefits and costs. Just remember you can really save money on your healthcare by evaluating the upcoming plans when you get your “MEDICARE AND YOU 2018” handbook.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Lynn at the DeKalb County Council on Aging at 256-845-8590.

Rhododendron Garden Club

By Mellanie Tuttle

The pending hurricane threat caused the Rhododendron Garden Club to reschedule its meeting until September 19, and since the MERF house is under renovation, the club met in the home of Mellanie Tuttle. Karen Kruse trucked in a delicious spread of savories, sweets and punch. President Mellanie Tuttle called the meeting to order. Dee Kelley gave the meditation “Golden Rule” which stated, “It would be great if human beings were great at being human and if all of mankind were made up of kind women and kind men. It would be wonderful if common knowledge was knowledge commonly known. If the light from being enlightened into every heart would shine. It would be glorious if neighbors were neighborly and indifference a forgotten word. It would be awesome if we shared everything and being greedy was absurd. It would be spectacular if the Golden Rule was golden to every man. And the good things that we ever did, was everything we can.” Members named the Aster, Beautyberry, pink and white Cleome, Dahlias, Phlox and Zinnias as fall blooming flowers which hopefully will also be entered in the flower show.

Committee reports followed, with Horticulture Chair Martha Wood encouraging the inclusion of Phlox paniculata in the garden. Phlox prefers full sun and fertile, well-drained soil. Blooming from mid to late summer, the rich nectar in the clusters of white, lavender, pink, rose, red or bicolor blooms attracts pollinators. The cultivar ‘David’ is a white variety that has good resistance to powdery mildew. Deadhead to preserve a tidy appearance, promote new blooms and prevent self-seeding. Mellanie Tuttle invited members to help Moon Lake’s after-school students create a floral design. Twenty-seven folks learned the basics of line, flower gradation, and fillers. An hour of organized chaos ensued and creations ranged from free form whimsical to stunning! The hope is to have an actual flower show in the spring.

Carol Argo gave the program “Garden Enemies and a Few Friends” in an informational PowerPoint presentation. Several insects have a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde aspect. The larval stage of the cabbage butterfly will destroy crops, but the butterfly itself is quite pretty. Flies are nuisances, but in the maggot stage are useful to clean up refuse, and home-destroying termites in the woods turn fallen trees back into mulch! Aphids, scales, cutworms, and Japanese beetles all are harmful, but the vast majority of insects are beneficial. Ladybugs, praying mantis, lacewings, bumblebees, and ground beetles (40,000 species) battle victoriously against the harmful insects and are the best form of biological control. Know your insects and avoid indiscriminate use of pesticides and herbicides. Planting native annuals and perennials will attract the good guys. A handout from the Planet Natural Research Center lists 25 tips and tricks for organic gardeners and pest maintenance.

SAGE ADVICE: It’s Finally Fall!

by Susan Seago

The autumn season is upon us. I can see change in the leaf colors and a great deal of change in the sunlight. Cooler weather will soon be here, as will the shorter days. With less light, the chloroform begins to withdraw from leaves, creating the appearance of shades of brown, red, orange, yellow, and deep purple. Autumn is my favorite time of the year with all its warm colors and festive surroundings. It’s a great time to be outdoors!

As you prepare your landscaping for fall and winter, let me offer some suggestions. Let’s begin with cleaning and refreshing. Annuals will soon die and need to be removed from the garden. Leaves will be taken away and some fresh mulch or pine straw added as needed. Some perennials that die back can be pruned, while others such as lantana and sedums should be left alone until spring. The flower heads of the sedums serve as winter food for the birds. And lantana has hollow stems that can hold water and cause the roots to freeze if cut back now. In the spring, when these plants send up new growth at ground level, prune the browned stems back to the ground.

If your beds need some refurbishing, plant some evergreen perennials such as hellebore (Lenten Rose), or Tassel or Autumn ferns, or heucheras (Coral Bells). Another beautiful fall flowering perennial is the toad lily (Tricyrtis), with its orchid shaped blooms—usually white with purple spots. It really is a wonderful perennial. One of my favorite fall blooming flowers is the ‘Sheffield’ mum. A true perennial, it presents as a beautiful green leaf plant during the summer, and then in October it blooms with pale pink daisy-like flowers which continue to bloom throughout the month.

The usual array of fall annuals such as pansies, violas, kale, and dianthus add to the winter bed, blooming through winter until early spring. Of course, chrysanthemums are beautiful until first frost! Don’t throw them away. Just cut them back, plant them, and watch them come back in greater glory next spring. They will bloom in late May to early June; cut them back around the fourth of July and watch them bloom again in late September through October! And, there’s a secret to making the blooms larger. E-mail me at susanandreesa@aol.com and I will let you in on it! Don’t forget the bulbs. Late October through November is good for planting daffodils, tulips, and other spring-blooming flowers. Throw a little bulb booster in the hole with the bulb when you plant. Follow directions on the package for how deep to plant—the bigger the bulb, the deeper the hole! To enjoy the fall season totally, plan to be in Mentone the weekend of October 21-22 for Colorfest in Brow Park and in town. I look forward to seeing you then.

Rescues and Evacuees

The connection between us and our pets is palpable. They see us, and they forgive all our quirks and forgetfulness. They know our weaknesses and love us anyway. They become a part of our hearts and even if they aren’t with us physically, they are with us in our thoughts.

For most people, leaving these family members behind in a hurricane would be out of the question. However, sometimes they are forgotten in times of disaster or the death of an owner. And sometimes there isn’t enough time or man-power to get pets to safety. The storms and fires that have plagued our country in the last few months have brought this issue to our attention.

During the onslaught and arrival of Hurricane Irma, I had the opportunity to host four South Florida evacuees and their two dogs. They contacted me to see if I had space for them, and, by the way, would I take their dogs as well. I immediately responded YES! They were in the path of Irma and were evacuating before the full rush of mandatory evacuation from their areas. Still, a trip that would normally take about 10 hours took Cydné, Em and their Skipper Key dog, Joey, 18 hours. They were tired and exhausted from the emotions of leaving their home in St. Petersburg, but grateful they were all together.

My other guests from Gulfport took two days to travel north, with multiple stops for gas that wasn’t there, and a search for hotels that weren’t full and news about the storm that wasn’t so daunting. Nadine and Ardis and their three-pound Chihuahua, Ruby, arrived tired and also fearful of what might happen.

I knew that as adults we can endure anything for a short time that we might not want to do the rest of our lives. But my concern was whether the dogs would get along and whether the stress of being in a new place without the routine of home might make them more irritable. They didn’t know each other and were from close families. Would that be a factor in helping to ease the stress of what might have been, back in Gulfport or St. Pete? My hopes were high.

Amazingly, both Joey and Ruby took some time but finally bonded and even began sleeping together. They watched out for each other, much the way we adults were watching out for each other. A week after arriving, my guests decided it was time to go back to the uncertain results of Irma. Each family said good-bye, saying how grateful they were for my help. I truly was blessed by these women and two dogs. I couldn’t have had better guests.

Unlike many others, Nadine, Ardis and Ruby, and Cydné, Em and Joey had very little damage to their homes. The power was restored within a few days of their return. They are tired, but safe. Now comes the task of getting on with life. All four women have decided they are going to look into property in this area and move north. They fell in love with the mountain, the weather, and the people…

Yarn Bombing in Fort Payne!

by Katelyn Worley

Visit the streets of downtown Fort Payne on Saturday, October 14, and you’ll see a unique temporary art installation! “Yarn bombing” is a type of street art used to bring color and character to the streets of cities. It is believed to have started in Houston, Texas, by Magda Sayeg, who decorated her shop with a cozy on her door handle in 2005. Since then, yarn bombing has spread worldwide and numerous items have been “bombed”, including trees, bicycles, posts, bridges, statues, tanks and more.

The folks at Zkanos Socks have graciously donated seconds that will be sewn together like a patchwork quilt and attached to light poles, trees, and benches downtown. Ms. Vinzini’s art class at Fort Payne High School is participating in the project, along with other community volunteers. There will be plenty of yarn available for anyone who wants to participate in the event. This yarn can be wrapped about items for a simple project or, if desired, more intricate patterns can be used with knitting or crochet. If you’re interested in being involved with this event, please contact Katelyn Worley at 256-548-2623 or KatieRosenm@gmail.com.

This event is co-sponsored by Boom Town Makers Market (a project of Landmarks), the Historic Association of DeKalb County Alabama, and Fort Payne Main Street, and it’s part of “I Love Yarn Day”, a national event sponsored by the Craft Yarn Council. There will be yarn bombings and scavenger hunts all over the country on this day. Based on Fort Payne’s heritage of making socks, Fort Payne Main Street’s new slogan is “Tightly Woven, Perfect Fit”, a perfect tie-in to this event.
