Firemen Teach Fire Safety to Students

IMPORTANT INFORMATION WE CAN ALL HEED

by Kelly Leavitt

Fire Prevention Safety Week takes place across our nation in October of each year, and this year our local volunteer firemen from the North Lookout Mountain Fire Protection District presented a program for the students of Moon Lake School which emphasized safety and prevention of fires. They brought to the school a special trailer which was purchased by the Fort Payne Fire Department using grant funds given by the Department of Homeland Security. The DeKalb County Association of Fire Fighters (comprised of 26 fire departments in the county) contributed matching funds to the grant. This trailer allows the students to have an interactive experience. This was the first time Moon Lake students have had this opportunity.

After a discussion of safety tips, the children entered the trailer and then were able to experience what it’s like to actually crawl out of a smoke-filled room. The old adage “Stop – Drop – Roll” has been amended to “Stop – Drop – Roll—Cover”, meaning to cover your eyes and face. One of the most vital rules offered by the firemen was, “If you see fire in your home, get out and stay out.”

The children, who showed polite, attentive interest, enthusiastically asked questions and shouted out the answers to questions asked by the firefighters. There’s something about the unjaded interest of children that can often show adults where we need to be paying attention. We may think with a certain level of dispassion that we are safe from fires. The children, though, want to be clear about the matter.

I recently spent a Monday evening at the fire house before the firefighters’ weekly meeting and spoke with Fire Chief Joseph Lee and Wes Pullen, who is a

Mentone Water Board Sells

by Kelly Leavitt

The Mentone Water Works board met in special session on Friday, October 26, and voted to sell the town’s water system to the Fort Payne Water Works Board. The vote to accept the offer was unanimous among board members Bobby Brown, Jim Hedgpeth, Ben Shurett and chairman Wesley Griffith.

“In September, the board authorized me to meet with FPWW board executive Paul Nail to negotiate the sale,” Shurett said. “Their offer to purchase the Mentone system has been accepted and we consider this to be a win-win situation. Most importantly, this is going to be a much better situation for customers of the Mentone Water Board. The monthly cost of water will be lower for everyone, regardless of how much water each customer uses, and every member of our board is pleased with that.”

Mentone customers currently pay $37.44 for the first 3,000 gallons of water, and an additional $15 per thousand gallons of water used after that. The new rate will be $26.16 for the first 2,000 gallons, and $6.70 per thousand gallons after that, plus applicable utility taxes.

“Additionally, FPWW is better equipped to service our customers and maintain our infrastructure,” Shurett said. “The biggest challenge the Mentone system has faced has been not having enough customers to adequately sustain our aging pipes and pumps and still be able to provide water at a reasonable rate to our residential and commercial customers.”

The Fort Payne system has three crews on call 24-hours a day to respond to service calls, and it is expected that Mentone customers will be provided service more quickly than is currently available.

“I am also pleased that the Fort Payne Water Board will appoint someone from the Mentone area to serve in an advisory position to its board and management,” Shurett said. “That will ensure that Mentone residents will have an advocate for them expressing concerns regarding water service we all receive.”

Preliminary specifics include that Mentone Water Works will keep its unrestricted cash and equipment. Fort Payne Water Works will pay off MWW’s debt of approximately $635,000 and will directly pay MWW a sum of $850,000. Fort Payne Water Works will annually lease the current MWW office space for $9,000 and will offer employment to MWW employees, probably subject to a 90-day probationary period. Fort Payne Water Works intends to employ a currently unused water tower, which will likely lead to increased water pressure. The new FPWW office in Mentone will remain open with the current working hours, at a minimum. In addition, FPWW will assume responsibility for rehabilitating and maintaining the current system’s pipes, meters, etc.

According to Mentone mayor Rob Hammond, once the sale is complete, the MWW board will no longer exist as an entity and its funds will be

Many have asked about progress on the new bridge. According to ALDOT North Region Engineer Curtis Vincent, crews from Wright Construction should be back on site in early November. Much of the bridge will be precast off-site and a large crane will be required to set the pieces. There is limited space to put the crane. Some of the utility lines will have to be moved eight feet up the concrete poles so as not to interfere with the boom.

Last week we had our first meeting with representatives from Ladd Environmental and ALDOT on the sidewalk project. Ladd has already surveyed and is beginning work on the plans.

As you will read elsewhere in this issue of The Groundhog, Mentone Water has reached an agreement to sell the system to Fort Payne Water. This seems like a win-win for all involved. We thank present water board members Wesley Griffith, Bobby Brown, Jim Hedgepath, Ben Shurett, and all other previous members, for their service. When they became water board members they took on a lot of headaches with no compensation—true community service.

Letter from the Editor

November is one of my favorite months. ’Tis the month of gratitude. It’s cool enough for a fire. The stars shine a bit more brightly. It’s the month my son was born. And this year, it’s the month of my daughter’s baby shower. My first grandchild will soon be here, and I can’t wait.

I’ve been thinking a lot lately about children, especially babies. Frankly, I think young parents of today are brave. I know I sound like my own grandfather now, but it’s sometimes hard for me to imagine raising a child in these times. We are now far removed from the mid-century days of the 20th century, when so much seemed simpler. But amidst the complexities of today, I truly have great faith in the young people. They seem more clear and engaged with what they want their world to be. I think the youth who are surrounded with love and patience, guidance and nurturing, and, most of all, the freedom to choose their own way through life, will find ways to succeed where previous generations have missed the mark.

I am grateful for this potential. I am grateful for our community. And I am grateful for the veterans who have fought for the freedom our children deserve…and want. Happy November to all—Kelly
I hope everyone enjoyed Colorfest as much as I did. As I write this, the numbers aren’t in, but from personal observation it appears that there was a very nice turnout. I only wish the “colors” on the trees had shown up as well!

Many thanks to Sharon Habin for her tireless efforts in coordinating all aspects of the festival, along with all of the people who volunteered their time and energy to help her out. Hopefully, the vendors and all of our local businesses had a tremendous weekend as a result of these efforts.

As we enjoy the cooler days and nights of fall, please be thinking about what you can do to help Mentone and our surrounding areas maintain (and grow upon) the vibrant and caring community that is ours. Now, I believe it’s not too early to start planning for next spring’s Rhododendron Festival...

Mentone’s Bicentennial Committee Wants to Know: Whatchya Got? by Holley Midgley

In 2019, the State of Alabama will celebrate its 200th birthday with a year-long bicentennial celebration. The Mentone Town Council has established a committee to look at ways the town can honor and remember our own rich history and heritage during next year. The committee is already at work producing a video documentary that will highlight Mentone’s history from the Native Americans of the Woodland era through the Cherokees; the arrival of the first white settlers; the Civil War in the area; early development; the legacy of our summer camps; the Depression Era; prominent families; the contributions of people with second homes here as well as retirees to the area; our historic elementary school; our incredible natural wonders; civic leaders over the years; and much more.

The committee is seeking old photographs and movie film or videos, diaries, newspaper articles, interview subjects who know the area’s history, etc. In February we will be set up on a Sunday afternoon at the Mentone Inn to copy your old photos and diary entries; it will take just a few minutes, and you do not have to leave them with us. If you think you have such resources, or know someone who does, we’d like to hear from you. Please contact me (the documentary’s producer) via email at duckman1@centurytel.net. The project is in the earliest stages of development, so put on your thinking cap and let us know if you think you have something of interest.

Look for more information in future issues of The Groundhog. The finished production will be premiered on a big screen at a party for the whole community, to be held around the 4th of July in 2019. Additionally, there are plans to mail a copy of the video, on DVD, to all households in the Mentone town limits.

nationally certified fire investigator with 30 years’ experience as a fireman. They offered me more details that we all need to heed. “You should have two ways out of every room in the house,” Pullen emphasized. Also, if your house has more than one floor, each upstairs room should have a ladder you can use to escape. “I just worked a fire in Guntersville where the family woke up and the stairwell was engulfed in flames, so they had to climb out onto the roof and jump down.” A ladder will help you avoid any unnecessary injuries that may come from such a high jump.

“A lot of people don’t realize the speed with which a fire develops,” Pullen said. On average, it can take as little as four minutes from first ignition of a flame on a couch or piece of furniture to total involvement. He showed me a video on YouTube produced by NIST—the National Institute of Standards and Technology—which showed a dry Christmas tree catching fire. “A dry Christmas tree is a bomb waiting to go off,” said Pullen. In the video, within 20 seconds the top half of the living room was covered with smoke, and within 40 seconds, visibility was down to zero.

Newer furniture is treated with inhibitors that slow the burn down, which may lull us into thinking we’re safer than in days past. “Fifty years ago, it was mostly natural products that would burn,” Pullen explained. “The carbon dioxide would get you, but the smoke itself would not be immediately dangerous. With modern construction and all the plastics and synthetic material, toxic gases are in the smoke. These gases disorient you, debilitate you and will kill you without reaching lethal levels of carbon dioxide. So, if you go back in to get your pet or your wallet, just breathing the smoke can disorient you to the point that you can’t find your way out.”

When a fire starts, smoke is at least 300 degrees, so within a minute the temperature in the upper portion of the room will be over 1000 degrees. All that heat reflects down and heats up the carpet and furnishings. With the gases that come off the carpet, the fire eventually will reach a significant temperature where everything in the room ignites. This point is called the flashover point. One NIST video shows the difference between a “legacy” room and a “modern” room burning. The legacy room reached its flashover point in just under 30 minutes. The modern room reached that point in less than 4 minutes. To put these temperatures in further perspective, a pound of urethane foam puts off about 1600 BTUs. A pound of gasoline puts off about 1700 BTUs.

Our volunteer firemen face a number of challenges fighting fire in our area. As a group, they all expressed their frustration with often not being able to find a fire due to inadequate identification of house numbers. “Sometimes we have to hunt for a house,” said Chief Joseph Lee. “Once it took us two hours to find a house.”

The best way to be identifiable is to have clearly marked 4” contrasting reflective numbers at the entrance to your driveway. Pullen explained, “When it’s 4 o’clock in the morning and it’s dark and raining outside, the lights go out and you start smelling smoke and you call in, it’s not going to be easy to find your house unless we can clearly see your house numbers. If you can’t see them from 50 or 75 feet away using a flashlight or headlights, we can’t either. The rescue squad and ambulance have the same problem.”

The 4” reflective numbers can be placed on your mailbox post, or even a tree next to the driveway. “A lot of people up here whose primary homes are out of town might not have a mailbox,” said Chief Lee. “We strongly recommend that...”

these folks put a simple post at their driveway to identify their house.” An inexpensive post can be made with a piece of PVC pipe that’s painted black with contrasting reflective numbers on it. 4” reflective numbers cost less than $1 each.

“Another thing people don’t think about is whether or not a fire truck can get to your house. If a milk truck can’t get to your house, a fire truck can’t either,” said Chief Lee. A fire truck holds up to 20,000 pounds of water. Add in the weight of the truck, and you need to be sure your driveway can handle the weight. If your driveway has a light-weight bridge on it, be sure to let the fire department know.

In any case of any emergency, be sure to call 911 first and not call the fire chief or other firemen. “When we get those calls, we just turn around and call 911 ourselves, losing valuable time when we could be traveling to your emergency. 911 dispatches the call to all of our firemen, so it’s much more expedient,” said Chief Lee.

It’s also highly recommended that if you have a person in your household with physical challenges, you let the DeKalb 911 system know which part of the house their bedroom is in. You can call their non-emergency number at 256-638-8798 and have your specific information added to their database, so they can inform emergency personnel when they dispatch the call.

Chief Lee also expressed the need for part-time residents who have fire alarms built into their security systems to be sure an immediate neighbor has a key to the house, so they can go in and turn off the alarm if it was triggered by something other than fire. The firemen spend a lot of time responding to false alarms. “We get out there and look in all the windows,” he said. “If we can’t see smoke and we can’t access the house, it gets frustrating, especially because we can’t see into second floor windows.” All they can do is return the trucks to the station and hope for the best.

It’s also important that firearms be kept in safes that are rated for fire. Loose ammunition is not a problem, but a packed gun will explode. Luckily, Pullen said, it’s been their experience that most people who live in the area do use fireproof gun safes.

Most accidental fires are preventable. Good housekeeping helps a lot. Don’t leave piles of newspapers or magazine, or any highly combustible material, in your home. Make sure your electrical circuits aren’t overloaded. “A space heater takes 1500 watts of power. That’s over 10 amps that it’s drawing when it’s on. These little extension cords people use are rated at 800 watts,” said Pullen. Respect the burn ban (in place from May 1 through October 1) and don’t burn outside, especially on a windy day. If you burn wood in a fireplace or wood stove, be certain the chimney or stove pipe is cleaned out at least once a year—more often if you burn a lot of wood. As little as an 1/8” collection of carbon soot can ignite and start a fire you may not know about until it’s too late. Make sure you replace the batteries in smoke alarms twice a year. One rule of thumb is to change them when the time changes, so this month is a good time to take care of this.

Several of the firefighters I spoke with emphasized that if your house is burning, get out and stay out. Never run into a house that’s been closed up tight. There might be a slow burn happening in the house that will explode once the door is opened.

The firemen returned again and again to the topic of posting 4” reflective numbers. One reality of living rurally is there’s usually a significant delay in fires being reported. Because we rely on a volunteer fire department and no one mans the station, once the firemen receive the dispatch, they have to leave their work or home and travel to the station to get the trucks and gear, and then travel to the fire. When they can’t find a house due to poor identification, it can be incredibly frustrating for them.

These men are highly dedicated to the service of firefighting. While I was speaking with Pullen and Lee, I could hear conversations in the background, all of which centered around fire – discussions about grants, equipment, etc. There was no small talk. These men were here to do the work. Let’s, each of us, do everything we can to make that work easier for them. It’s evident the Moon Lake students were attentive and paying heed to the firemen’s advice. As adults, we can do even more to protect our homes, our pets…and our children.

Creative Spirit Market Celebrates 3rd Year
November 10 & 11 • DeSoto State Park • by Rhea Pirch

The Little River Arts Council is pleased to announce that it has received a grant of $1380 from the Alabama State Council on the Arts, the state arts agency. This grant will assist the arts council to once again team up with DeSoto State Park to present the Third Annual Creative Spirit Market. This open-air showcase of makers will be held at the Picnic Area at DeSoto State Park on November 10 and 11, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day. Local and regional fine and folk artists and craftsmen will demonstrate their creative process and display their premium hand-crafted goods for shoppers to browse and purchase. Items available this year will range from pottery, fairy sculptures, handmade dolls, mosaic glass, woven baskets, and many other individual works of art.

An interactive art area will be available for all to make their own piece of art to carry home with them. Food vendors will be on hand, and a line-up of local acoustic musicians will entertain visitors both days. There is a separate play area for kids, and paths down to the river for those who want to further explore the beauty of the fall foliage in and around the picnic area.

“A River Runs ‘Through It’, the community art project that will transform the cement stairs at DeSoto Falls into a mosaic work of art, will be on display to give visitors an idea of what it will look like upon completion. This project, started in July, entails many hours of community participation in cutting and placing glass, under the leadership of Brittney Hughes, Naturalist at DeSoto State Park and board member of the Little River Arts Council, and glass artists Linda Munoz and Jane Nuckolls. It will be installed at DeSoto Falls in spring of 2019.

If you are an artist or musician who would like to participate in this year’s Creative Spirit Market, visit the events page at littleriverartscouncil.org and click on the artist application link. Vendor fees are $20 or free to members of the Little River Arts Council. We hope to see you all at this exceptional event!

This Old House: MERF Community House

My boards may be a little creaky and my paint a little flaky but I am full of life. I continue to open my doors to the young and the wise so my walls are full of joy, laughter and learning.

MERF Senior Lunches
No, not seniors in high school

Even though high school seniors are a mighty fine bunch and a well-liked group around the MERF House, MERF lunches are served to adults who, because of their “advanced age,” are also known as SENIORS. I know lots about this group because I’m proud and happy to be in it.

About a year ago, I became even jollier about being a senior when I learned about MERF Senior Lunches. At that time, I had helped with a garden club meeting at the MERF House and I had presented a program for high school seniors there; but Senior Lunch wasn’t something I had experienced. Then, my active and attractive neighbor, Vicky, told me about how much she enjoyed serving absolutely free lunches to senior Mentonians at the MERF house. I learned that Mentone’s restaurants, camps, churches, clubs, and organizations not only care about supporting MERF’s fabulous work with Mentone youth, but also enjoy seeing older people have great experiences too! These Mentone businesses and organizations each donate a delicious lunch which they prepare for 30 to 50 seniors and then deliver it to the MERF House almost every Wednesday from September to April.

After explaining about MERF Senior Lunch, my friend Vicky suggested that I become a MERF Senior Lunch server. I was thinking about just eating one of those lunches she was telling me all about. Those servers were working almost every Wednesday during the school year. “Hmm,” I thought, “maybe I should take this invitation to work, not eat, as a compliment from Vicky, who is young among senior servers. Sounds like a hard job, but why not?” Yep, I agreed to try my hand at serving Senior Lunch.

What fun I had during my first attempt! Here are some of the reasons why:

• An interesting, friendly and talkative group of Mentone people who think of themselves as senior citizens assembled. (There is no age requirement to be either a diner nor a server.)
• From great Italian pizzas to southern greens, beans and fried chicken, generous local business folks came, as scheduled, with lunch for all. (They provide delicious meals with dessert included.)
• After lunch, Moon Lake School students and The Black Hat Poet entertained with some great songs and poetry. (Sometimes seniors just sing as a pianist picks some well-known hymns or songs.)

While all this good time was happening, servers were having lots of fun filling tea glasses and serving plates and chatting with fellow Mentonians. (Servers actually have fun taking care of both serving and cleaning up afterward. No work is required of senior lunch attendees.)

I was hooked! (There is always enough lunch for us servers, too.)

At Christmas lunch during my first year as a server, Director Sarah Wilcox provided us servers with some holiday caps and thanked us, calling us “MERF Elves.” The name stuck. Meet a MERF Elf and you’ll meet a senior who really enjoys her service and her co-workers. Meet a lunch attendee and you’ll hear about some good times and some delicious lunches. Meet Director Sarah and you’ll then know a talented lady who really enjoys her work. Meet a MERF Board member, like my friend Vicky, and you’ll find even more reasons to appreciate MERF’s dedication to a good life in Mentone.

Most of us Mentone senior citizens have had several jobs and lots of experiences to share, but I believe we all agree on one topic: The Mentone Education Resources Foundation improves our lives! —Paula Tally #leavemeinmentone

A few words from Sarah:

In this Thanksgiving season, MERF is grateful for the trust and the support of the Mentone community and friends as plans continue to make the mountain a wonderful place for growing up and for living fully. Thank you MAPA for another wonderful Colorfest. Thank you for those who stopped by MERF’s booth and supported us with your purchases.

The last fall MERF lunch will be November 14, but we will have a wonderful Christmas party on Wednesday, December 5. Applications for the Sue McLaurin Henry Scholarship are available by email, or from the counselors at JSU and NACC. Scholarships are available for spring semester 2019 to assist in paying for college or technical degrees. Due date is Saturday, December 1, 2018. Students must be full-time with at least a 2.8/4.0 average and live in Mentone or Valley Head.

transferred to the Town of Mentone. The Mentone Water Works was created by the town but has been run by its own board with its own separate finances.

Since the deal is so new, Mayor Hammond is still uncertain about some of the legal details, but the issue will be discussed at the November meeting of the Mentone town council. Some of the funds created by the sale will almost certainly be applied to the grant that the town recently received that needs to be financially matched in order for the sidewalk project along AL Hwy. 117 to proceed.

“We’ll also look at some infrastructure needs,” Hammond said. “Another possibility is reserving funds, so we can better leverage potential future grants. We’re just beginning to look into the possibilities.”

Mentone resident Lisa Schad attended the special meeting and asked how the current issues of incorrect bills and meter readings will be handled. “Customers should continue to bring their issues to the MWW to resolve issues,” she reports. “Some of these issues were based on inconsistent readings, so they anticipate that these issues will not continue. If there are issues of inaccurate meters, FPWW will update equipment.”

“I am pleased we were able to negotiate this with the Fort Payne Water Works Board,” Shurett said. “All the Mentone Water board members are confident this deal is best for our customers and for the town of Mentone.”

Shurett added he hoped the deal could be completed by December 1. Final details will be presented to the council after attorneys for both water boards have completed all their work.

Mike Ellis, magician, speaker, and pastor of Moon Lake Baptist Church, will present “Weekend of Wonder” at the church on Friday and Saturday nights, November 2 and 3, at 7 p.m. Each program is free of charge and open to the entire community.

On Friday evening, he will present a unique and “almost unbelievable” program highlighting the “Wonders of the Mind”. Can he really read minds and forecast what may happen in the future? He will also speak on the topic: “Change your Thinking, Change Your Life”. The excitement will be high on Saturday night as he presents “A Night of Wonder”, a fun-filled evening for the entire family.

Mike Ellis is an active member of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, the Georgia Magic Club, and the Fellowship of Christian Magicians. He has shared his magic and message with churches, youth camps and community groups across the Southeast, as well as in New York, California, Hawaii and Bermuda.

There is no charge for these events. Seating is limited, so you are encouraged to arrive early. Moon Lake Baptist Church is located at 4671 Al Hwy. 117 in Mentone.

The Summerville Renaissance Festival offers chivalry, romance, and a rollicking good time. Centrally located, the festival will run from Dowdy Park to the Summerville Depot on November 3, this free festival will delight and amaze all ages.

Enjoy live entertainment, shopping, art, games, and a feast fit for a king. Festival hours are 11 a.m.–5 p.m., rain or shine.

Special acts are set all throughout the day on four different stages. A special Pub Sing with all performers will be held inside the depot from 4–5 p.m. An arrival of the Tennessee Valley Railroad Museum Passenger Train is scheduled for 1 p.m. and the North Georgia Cruisers will host a Cruise In on East Washington Street. Rhododendron Garden Club • by Mellanie Tuttle

The Rhododendron Club convened on October 9 at the Boy Scout House. Several members, including the President, Hostess, Meditation Giver and Horticulture Chairman, were out of town or busy with other agendas, so attendance was sparse, but President-to-be Marsha Merrell conducted the meeting with aplomb.

The horticulture report was given in absentia. A handout listed pollinators plants by the season.

Spring plants included Virginia sweet spire, Red and Black chokeberry and Oakleaf hydrangea. Summer plants recommended were Lead plant, Buttonbush and Bottlebrush, Snowberry and Coralberry. Late Fall/ Winter plants mentioned were Bottlebush, Snowberry and Coralberry. Late Fall/ Winter plants mentioned were

The public is invited to a dedication ceremony at the future site of the Mentone Arts & Cultural Center on Saturday, November 3, from 10 a.m.–1 p.m. The event includes a Blessing of the Land and unveiling of the model form of Sequoyah which will eventually be cast in bronze. The finished statue will be the featured centerpiece of the center’s sculpture garden. The statue is the work of renowned artists Carl McCleskey and Betsy Scott.

Sequoyah (named in English George Gist or George Guess) was a Cherokee silversmith. In 1821, he completed his independent creation of a Cherokee syllabary, making reading and writing in Cherokee possible. During his work on the syllabary, he lived in near Willstown, the Cherokee village in DeKalb County.

One of the special guests of the dedication will be Charlie Rhodarmer, who has been director of the Sequoyah Birthplace Museum in Vonore, TN. Rhodarmer has been in charge of the museum for the past 19 years. A graduate of Western Carolina University with a degree in criminal justice, he served with the 82nd Airborne Division, Field Artillery, B 2nd 321. He also worked for the Scottish Tartans University with a degree in criminal justice, he served an Indian Reservation in South Dakota. Her award-winning quilts have been included in the Smithsonian Society Museum in Highlands, North Carolina, as well as the John F. Kennedy Special Warfare Museum at Fort Bragg.

The dedication will include food, music, and the raffling of a satin “Morningstar” quilt handcrafted by Lakota elder Borma Blacksmith, which will be raffled off during MACC’s dedication ceremony on Saturday, November 3.

The Watters/Felts Trio
Friday, November 9 • 7–9 p.m.
MACC Education Center and Gallery
(5951 Alabama Hwy. 117, Mentone)
Admission for the popular jazz trio is a $15 donation to MACC.

The MACC Board of Directors is under new leadership with the resignation of longtime Board President Ray Padgett. Retired newspaper publisher and Mentone resident Ben Shurett was elected by the board to replace Padgett.

“I am excited about the challenge of leading the efforts to make the Mentone Arts and Cultural Center a reality,” Shurett said. “It’s an honor to take the position from Ray Padgett, and I’d like to thank Ray and his wife, Sandra, for all they have done for the betterment of Mentone.”

Padgett, a Mentone Town council member who has been board president since he and Mentone Mayor Rob Hammond founded MACC in 2014 and has previously been involved in other Mentone organizations, resigned at the regular quarterly meeting on Oct. 12. In his resignation letter, he said he wants to concentrate on his and Sandra’s well-being.

“Kamama, MAPA, MACC and the town consumed most of my time over the last five years,” Padgett wrote in the letter. “My guiding force was to help make Mentone a better place to live and visit for current and future generations.

“I am 77 and Sandra will also be 77 on October 23. Since moving to Mentone, we have ignored the physical and emotional constraints placed on aging bodies. Because of health issues, we must change our focus and spend more time working to make both of us healthier. This means that I must reduce my time on volunteer and business efforts. We are selling most of our property and businesses (Kamama and cabins) and I must reduce the emotional and physical time I spend working for MACC.”

Padgett, who has contributed thousands of man-hours and regular personal financial contributions to the project, will still volunteer on a limited basis. The MACC board presented him an appreciation gift for his service.

Shurett shares Padgett’s vision for making the regional facility a place for locals and visitors alike. “The MACC Center will become a reality and we’ve made great progress lately, in terms of raising money, reaching out to new potential and significant donors, and in forming partnerships with Northeast Alabama Community College and others,” Shurett said.

“Becoming a regional and tri-state center for arts and cultural events will greatly enhance our ability to get grants and funds from national foundations and levels of government.

“When completed, the MACC Center has the opportunity to benefit all of Mentone and the surrounding area. We look forward to the day when this beautiful facility can play host to functions for all other groups in Mentone and we can all work together to promote our special part of Alabama. When we do that, Mentone and the surrounding area will be an even more magical place to live.”

It was one of those days in your life that you know you will never forget. You remember where you were, what you were doing and how you felt. I couldn’t believe the conversation that I had just had with a coworker, I just knew she had to be talking about someone else, not my dear friend. As I went back into our office I told my boss that I was taking my lunch early and might be a little late getting back. She nodded because she knew where I was going, and understood. Traffic was, as usual, heavy getting out of Atlanta but I was determined. I reached my friend’s home, saw all the cars parked everywhere and felt my first sense of pure dread—what I heard must be true! After finding a place to park I ran to the front door and stopped, afraid to go further, when all of a sudden the door opened and my precious friend fell into my arms. As we stood there with this avalanche of grief pouring out of my friend onto me I kept asking “Why?” Some time later, I had the misfortune to find out the answer to my question.

My friend’s son had thought he wanted to have some “fun” and a “good time” with some new friends. He was only twelve, in the early preteen years of his young life when he overdosed on drugs that he had been given by someone at school. It is still a mystery to me. He never wanted for anything in his young life. He had loving parents who taught him, as best that they knew, right from wrong. He had a warm home, the latest sneakers and jeans, and was always encouraged in whatever sport or activity he was into at the moment.

I’m sure many of you have heard similar stories or have read stories like mine. This one just happens to be very close to my heart, as that was my dear friend’s only son and my godchild. This tragedy actually happened many years ago, before reading or hearing about a drug overdose was a daily occurrence. I have seen and read about so many more tragedies since that terrible day. One thing I have never let go of since that day was my desire to educate children about the dangers of drugs. I began my own education by reading and learning all that I could.

When I began my career in education, I loved the fact that the school where I was working had some dedicated teachers who believed, like I did, in educating our young people about the hazards of drugs. I became involved with the elementary school’s celebration of “Red Ribbon Week,” whose aim is to encourage young people to enjoy their youth drug-free. I loved showing my young students how life could be full of fun and things that I remember very vividly sitting in a water dunk tank one Red Ribbon Week during the coldest October ever...but the kiddos had a good time... “Drug Free.”

So yes, I’m still celebrating “Red Ribbon Week” here at Moon Lake Elementary, and yes still doing all of those “fun” and crazy things and having a “good time” with my precious Moon Lake students because I want them to always know that life can be full of good things “DRUG FREE!”

Sacred Garden Is Dedicated to the People of Mentone
by Rebecca Henderson

Town officials, project planners and more than 30 others braved the rain at St. Joseph’s on-the-Mountain Saturday, October 27, for a ribbon cutting and blessing of the church’s Sacred Garden. The space, which was featured in the Mentone Tour of Homes, has added many new elements over the past several months, including a beautiful gazebo and 1,000 feet of walking paths lined with donated benches that honor loved ones. Next in the plan is a prayer labyrinth and stations of the cross. The garden will continue to showcase plants native to our area. Folks are already enjoying the peaceful oasis, and residents and visitors alike are encouraged to use the garden for relaxation, reflection and remembrance.

Remember to set your clocks back an hour when you go to bed on Saturday, November 3!

Bill Schwarz, pictured here with his wife Sue, recently enjoyed a surprise party celebrating his upcoming 90th birthday. Bill’s daughter, Janet, hosted the party, which was catered by Plowshares in the MACC gallery in Mentone. American Folk singer/songwriter John McCutcheon performed for the gathering of family and friends, and the crowd serenaded Bill with John’s famous “Birthday Song.” Happy 90th Birthday, Bill!

A shocking series of murders among the Osage Indian tribe in Oklahoma in the 1920s left families terror stricken. Shootings, suspected poisonings, unexplained accidents, and a violent bomb blast killed over 20 people, and everyone wondered who would be next. Killers of the Flower Moon is the true story of people devastated by the violence and the lawmen who would seek justice for the victims and their loved ones.

The Osage at that time were the wealthiest people per capita in the world because they had retained mineral rights to their land in their treaties with the United States. The discovery of oil beneath that land meant that tribal members owned impressive homes and automobiles and employed servants. But their money made them targets for unscrupulous people who would see opportunities to make their own fortunes in what came to be known as “the Indian business,” systematic exploitation of the legal system to pocket the Osage wealth. Racism in the system afforded the tribe limited means to protest. Then the murders began.

Killers of the Flower Moon focuses on the story of Mollie Burkhart, whose sisters and mother died between 1921 and 1923. A quiet, churchgoing mother, married to a white man, Mollie was stunned when, one by one, her family members died by violence. Their deaths, along with others in the tribe, resulted in the tribal elders calling for the federal government to investigate. Perhaps the Bureau of Investigation, recently reorganized by young J. Edgar Hoover, could succeed where local, state, and private investigators had failed.

The agent in charge was Tom White, a former Texas Ranger and second-generation law enforcement officer. Hoover authorized White to put together a team to find the murderers and resolve this troublesome case. The investigators followed a trail of misdirection, scapegoats, and lies as they untangled the conspiracy to its awful end. Killers of the Flower Moon is true crime at its best, narrative nonfiction based on thousands of hours of research.

Author David Grann, in an interview after the book was named a National Book Award finalist, explained that he was inspired to write it by a panoramic photo at the Osage Nation Museum in Oklahoma—“a photograph on the wall which was taken in 1914 and showed a seemingly innocent gathering of white settlers and members of the Osage Nation. But part of the picture had been cut out. When I asked the museum director why, she said that it contained the image of a figure so frightening that she had removed it. She then pointed to the missing panel and said, ‘The devil was standing right there.’”

The photo and the missing piece do appear in book. In fact, the inclusion of many historical photos is another of the book’s strengths, as readers unfamiliar with the Western setting in the early 20th century can better grasp the context for this grim and compelling read.

The final section of the book which features Grann’s interviews with descendants of Mollie Burkhart and other principals in the case is a chilling reminder of how violent acts echo through succeeding generations, leaving their mark even on those whose knowledge is secondhand. As Grann demonstrates, for too many of the victims and their families, justice was not just delayed but ultimately denied.

Fans of Erik Larson’s Devil in the White City will not want to miss this one. Killers of the Flower Moon is available for check out at the Moon Lake Community Library.

We had a fantastic Colorfest event, despite Saturday’s chilly rain! There was a great turnout for Ryan Keef’s concert on Friday night concert at the Mentone Inn and everyone had a great time. Using a grant from MAPA, Little River Arts Council coordinated it and made it happen.

Rain on Saturday morning may have discouraged some visitors, but vendors were surprised at the amount of hardy souls that came through. More came out as the weather cleared. Attendance was good, not huge like last year. (It is usually affected by such things as Saturday afternoon football games.)

There were close to 60 cars parked each day at the farthest parking area at the future MACC site. This kept that many cars out of town, which created a much safer traffic situation. The small shuttle buses made it through traffic much more easily than the school buses we used during the Rhododendron Festival. Additional signage and parking cones were very useful. Parking and traffic policies will continue being refined to make it as pleasant as possible. At least one visitor said they enjoyed getting a tour around town. Thank you to the bus drivers for delivering everyone safely.

Many tasks which continue to be taken care of after the festival—putting up and taking down banners and over 70 signs around a 10-mile area, erecting and dismantling the stage tent top, washing trash barrels, mailing invoices, creating income statements, and writing the Festival Report—can make the festival seem endless. Volunteers make it all possible.

There are so many volunteers who helped, I cannot begin to name them all. I do, however, owe eternal thanks to Chris Davenport, who has been learning the Vendor Coordinator duties. It is a multifaceted job and, with so many additional vendors applying and additional computer tech learning curves for both of us, at times it was daunting. Thank you, Chris. Thanks, too, to the folks who drove me so many times for shopping and taking me to get donations, to friends who would send me texts of encouragement, to one friend who let us have parking space for the ‘gators’ and water to hose them down after, to the sign teams (so many, many signs), and to those who parked cars, carried trash, and volunteered at the MAPA booths, as well as to the set-up and clean-up crews.

For the fifth year, Lisa Schad of Tohi Massage coordinated the business decorating contest and Scarecrow Hollow. She and Debra Fey of the Graceful Giraffe also continued the business scavenger hunt for festival goers. Thank you to the judge of these events, too.

Thank you to all the volunteers, vendors, Desoto Rescue Squad, to those who coordinated activities associated with the festival, and to all who attended. Thank you to Kelly Leavitt, who worked with us with computer tech and publishing paper and social media. Grateful hugs to you all.

BeautiFALL Bizznesses in Mentone... by Anne McLeod

Merchants in Mentone showed their fall and Halloween colors for Colorfest weekend. The “BeautiFALL Bizzness” contest was extremely close. Selecting three winners from among a strong field was difficult. Each of the three businesses who placed made the most of their shops’ settings, selecting fall decorating motifs that celebrated the season while playing off the architectural style and location of their building.

Moon Lake Trading Company was the first-place winner, with decorations that accented the shop’s contemporary and playful atmosphere. Owner Misty Watters decked out her Easter Island-style garden sculptures in their Halloween best. One sported a clown nose and orange fright wig, while the other was transformed into a mummy. A black silhouette of three frolicking witches behind them continued the Halloween fun theme. A giant spider laid siege to the VW van out front. The unlikely combination of mums, mummies, bicycles, propane tanks turned into jack-o-lanterns, and garden gnomes in witches’ hats was creative and welcoming.

The Log Cabin Village shop owners placed second with a collective effort, ”Log Cabin Village Boot Hill.” The spooky cemetery ran down the alley between two of the buildings and featured skulls with flashing eyes, scary fog, stray body parts, ghosts, and the ever-popular fake rat. Overall it was a display that appealed to the kids in the crowd, and the Log Cabin Village owners clearly had a lot of fun putting it together.

Artisans took third place, with a lovely traditional display that played off the shop’s cottage architecture. A horse drawn buggy carried pumpkins, cotton stalks, cornhusks, and two scarecrows who guided the horse with a garland of red and gold fall leaves.

Anne McLeod served as the judge for this year’s contest. She and her husband Don Highfield moved to Mentone this summer from Athens, Georgia, to be closer to family in Trion and Ringgold, Georgia. She is a retired school librarian who has always enjoyed handcrafts, particularly knitting and quilting. You can find Anne on Saturdays at the Mentone Farmers’ Market where Don has a booth for his woodcarvings. Anne and Don are thoroughly enjoying life in Mentone and appreciate the warm welcome from the community.
Congratulations to Steve & Rena from Harvest, AL, who won Lola Mae Blalock’s beautiful quilt in our fundraising raffle, which raised $430 for MAPA.

Congratulations to Jane Holcomb of Scottsboro, AL, and Sarah Perkins of Valley Head, AL, for being the winners of the annual Scavenger Hunt which featured Mentone area businesses.

Get ready for some high-flying family fun on November 3, when the skies at Chattanooga's 33-acre Sculpture Fields will be filled with colossal and colorful kites, stunt kites and Rokkaku battle kites at the free “Sculptures in the Sky” event. This event will take place from 12–6 p.m. at 1800 Polk St., which turns off of Main Street on the Southside. In addition to kites, visitors will also enjoy performances, local food trucks and a beer tent.

Chattanooga police officers and firefighters, with volunteers from the public, will compete against each other with Rokkaku fighting kites. Some kites will be massive, spanning 20 feet, which are so large they must be anchored to the ground. Kids will be able to race parachute-like kites (bols) in what fliers call Running with the Bols. Visitors also will be able to make their own kites for free.

Sculpture Fields includes nearly 50 monumental-scale sculptures, 1.5 miles of dog-friendly walking paths and a hundred trees in its Commemorative Forest. Visit sculpturefields.org or call 423-266-7288.

Some people that I talk with about Little River Waterkeeper are interested to know how Waterkeepers work to safeguard the bodies of water we protect. The model our organization uses is one that was developed by Robert F. (Bobby) Kennedy, Jr., who formed the Waterkeeper Alliance in 1999. It leveraged a clause in the Clean Water Act that allows citizens to bring lawsuits against polluters. Bobby wanted to build on the success that the Hudson Riverkeeper group had battling pollution in New York. Bobby took that model and applied it to waterways around the world. As a result, Waterkeeper Alliance became one of the fastest growing environmental organizations in the world. There are now more than 360 Waterkeeper groups spanning six continents.

Mark Yaggi, executive director of Waterkeeper Alliance, said, “We’re often outnumbered by industry lobbyists and their bought-and-paid-for elected officials. We’re almost always outspent. But with the Clean Water Act and supporters like you, we keep winning victories for clean water.”

Bobby Kennedy has a fiery way to serve up the truth. It is the spirit that permeates the work of the Waterkeeper Alliance. “We have really good environmental laws in our country that are seldom enforced because the agencies that are supposed to protect the public end up being captured by the industry that they’re supposed to regulate. We often have to sue the agency that is supposed to be protecting the environment and force them to do their job,” said Kennedy. “There’s no difference between somebody who pollutes and a bank robber. In fact, it’s worse. If you rob a bank, the insurance company pays, and society gets over it. If you put mercury or PCBs into the Alabama River and somebody catches a fish and feeds it to a pregnant woman and that little girl... We know that mercury and PCBs are neurotoxins, that they lower IQ... So, if that little girl gets to fourth or fifth grade and she can’t solve a math problem as easily as her classmates, or she can’t read like she’s supposed to... If God gave her the brain to read that book but some company took it away from her, that’s child abuse and it’s assault and battery. You can get any state’s attorney or district attorney in the country to put a kid in jail for stealing a car,” Kennedy continued. “It’s really hard to get somebody to arrest a polluter. They’re usually the most powerful people in the state, and they’re the guys who give the politicians the contributions, they go to the cocktail parties, they go to the same clubs the political leaders do.”

Between 2005 and 2014, Waterkeeper Alliance and local Waterkeepers have been responsible for nearly 25 percent of all citizen enforcement actions under the Clean Waters Act. We are protecting your right to clean water more than anyone else.

In Alabama we have eight Waterkeeper Alliance Members. They are the Little River Waterkeeper, Coosa Riverkeeper, Mobile Baykeeper, Tennessee Riverkeeper, Black Warrior Riverkeeper, Choctawhatchee Riverkeeper, Hurricane Creekkeeper, and the Calaba Riverkeeper. As “Waterkeepers Alabama,” we work together on statewide issues. Here on Lookout Mountain we are fortunate that most people who live around here love the river as much as we do and want to keep it clean. So, for the most part, folks want to do the right thing and help stop the problem. When that isn’t the case we take other measures to correct the issue and get it cleaned up.

Some of the most problematic issues have been: trash from roadside litter that ends up in the water; erosion from poorly maintained roads of failed subdivisions, powerline access roads, and logging cuts where Best Management Practices (BMPs) were not up to standard; and failing septic systems and runoff from farms that have inadequate manure composting facilities or farms that apply manure for fertilizer too close to tributaries, resulting in unsafe bacteria levels and harmful algal blooms. Another issue is herbicide that is sprayed to maintain power line right-of-ways too close to the water.

If you notice a problem with the river, please contact your Little River Waterkeeper. We patrol the river often but can’t always see everything. We depend on you to help keep us informed, so I want to encourage you to get to know us. We depend on your donations to help keep the river clean. If you are interested in volunteering we’d love to hear from you. Drop me a line at wyshugart@littleriverwaterkeeper.org.

Menlo Veterans Day Program

A program honoring local Veterans will be held at the Menlo Elementary School Gymnasium on Friday, November 9 at 9:30 a.m., Eastern Standard Time. Menlo School students will take part in the program. There will be a special recognition of all veterans attending the event. This year, the Menlo Quilters will award a “Quilt of Valor” to a local veteran. These ladies made this quilt as a tribute to the time, sacrifice and service given by all men and women of the military. On this day, all over America, volunteers of the “Quilt of Valor” Foundation will be presenting quilts in various celebrations. The Quilters are honored to be able to do a small part to say, “Thank you for your service.” Also, the Menlo Housing Authority’s Resident Association will present a slide presentation of the Veteran Marker Project in memory of local deceased veterans. The Resident Association and Menlo Elementary School are the sponsors of this yearly program. The public is invited to attend this special event. For more information, contact the Housing Authority office at 706-862-2240.

Cloudland Community Park

Cloudland Community Park is busy renovating the kitchen in the pavilion. This renovation, along with our recent renovation of the bathroom, was undertaken with the funds earned at our two annual events: the 5K Fun Run on the 4th of July weekend and the Burning Leaf Festival on the last weekend in October. Both take place at the park. The park has tennis courts, a covered barbeque grill, lots of picnic tables, a ¼ mile walking track, playground equipment, lots of parking, and a large covered pavilion with a new kitchen and bathroom. The Park is available to rent for community gatherings or individual events. To learn more about the park, contact Maggie Johnson at 706-862 3040 or email CloudlandCommunityPark@yahoo.com. Marie McKinley
January 7, 2018

The Groundhog received a note from Barbara Lieu, who asked that we mention the passing of Marie McKinley, who died unexpectedly at age 77 on January 7, 2018. “Marie loved Mentone and enjoyed staying with her friend Gayle Becker at the cabin on Lake Lahusage that Gayle owned for over 30 years,” said Barbara. “She was a long-time member of the Angel Squad, providing aid and comfort to those with breast cancer. Many in Mentone will remember Marie as a person who never met a stranger, and as one who was always thinking of how we could help each other. Gayle now lives in Brewton, AL, at Westgate Village (100 Pineview St., Brewton, AL 36426), to be closer to her nieces who are seeing to her needs.”

The Valley Head Cemetery held their 3rd annual Memory Run on September 29. It was a beautiful morning for a run and we had a good crowd show up to take advantage of it.

It takes the support of a lot of people to make our event a success each year. From the business sponsors and the memorials. From the towns of Valley Head and Hammondville. From the runners, the volunteers, DeSoto Rescue Squad, the police and the fire departments from Valley Head, Mentone, and Hammondville that give up their Saturday morning. We thank them for their donations and support. Our Memory Run was a great success because of their generous donations of time and money. We could not have done it without them.

Since its inception in 2016, the proceeds from the Memory Run have helped provide the funds necessary for the much-needed repairs on the Cemetery Pavilion and have made it possible for the cemetery grounds to be mowed on a more regular schedule.

Overall winners were Francisco Domingo and Kelsey Draper. First, second and third place medals were given in the following age categories:

- 12 & under Male—Eli Day
- 12 & under Female—Irelynn Walsh, Baylee Walsh
- 20-29 Male—Trevor Lewis, Caleb White
- 20-29 Female—Kelsey Wade, Amber Griffith, Taylor Barrentine
- 30-39 Male—April Blanks, Michelle Walsh
- 30-39 Female—Connie Goolesby, Brook Smith, Christy Frost

We have a great group of runners and walkers that show their support every year. Thank you for your dedication. Come run or walk with us next year and help us grow!
Vegetable Casserole
This veggie casserole is from the Alabama Heritage Cookbook. I have been serving this dish for some thirty years. My family and friends always request this dish for celebration meals. I use salted butter instead of margarine and I usually triple or quadruple the recipe! —Kerry Brethaupt

1 can French green beans, drained
1 can Shoe Peg corn, drained
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 cup pimiento
1/2 cup grated sharp cheese
1 can cream of celery soup, undiluted

Mix beans and corn and pour into greased casserole dish. Mix other ingredients and pour over beans and corn.

Topping:
1 stick margarine, melted
1 stack Ritz crackers, crumbled
1/2 cup slivered almonds

Sprinkle Ritz crackers and slivered almonds on above mixture. Melt margarine and drizzle over top of casserole. Bake at 375º for 30 minutes. Reduce heat to 350º and bake for 30 minutes longer.

Fall Recipes

Beef Carbonnade
This recipe is perfect when it gets cool outside. It comes from the 1979 cookbook 1979, The Silver Palate. —Sarah Lockhart

1/4 lb. bacon
2 very large onions (1.5 to 2 lbs total), thinly sliced
1 tbsp sugar
1 cup flour
1 tbsp dried thyme
1 tsp salt
1/2 tsp pepper
3 lbs beef stew meat cubes
oil (as needed)
2 cups imported dark beer

1) Dice bacon and saute until crispy in a large heavy pan or Dutch oven/roaster. Remove bacon bits and set aside.
2) Cook onions in the rendered bacon fat until tender, add sugar, and then continue to cook and stir until they are browned and caramelized. Remove onions and set aside.
3) Combine flour, thyme, salt, and pepper in a bowl, and toss the beef cubes in the mixture.
4) Brown the floured beef cubes in the remaining bacon fat in small batches, adding oil if necessary.
5) Preheat oven to 325, turn the heat up on the pan, and pour the dark beer into the hot pan, deglazing the pan, while stirring all the browned bits on the bottom. Return the beef, bacon, and onions to the pan, lowering to a simmer.
6) Cover pan and cook in the oven for about 1.5 hours, stirring occasionally, until thickened and tender.
7) Serve with egg noodles tossed in butter and poppy seeds.

Sweet Potato Quiche from Megan Halderman, The Farm at Windy Hill

Preheat the oven to 350º. Peel and slice sweet potatoes. I slice mine using a mandoline, but a knife works great as well. The mandoline speeds up the process significantly and gives you even slices. Coat a pie dish with cooking spray, then fill the bottom of the dish with a layer of sweet potato slices. Cut the sweet potato rounds in half and fill around the edges of the pie dish, round side facing up. Once the entire dish is filled, coat one more time with cooking spray. Bake for 20 minutes. Turn heat up to 375º.

For the filling, heat a nonstick skillet over medium heat. Add spinach; saute 3 minutes. Remove from heat; cool. Combine milk and next 5 ingredients in a bowl; stir with a whisk. Arrange spinach mixture in crust; pour egg mixture over spinach. Sprinkle with feta. Bake at 375º for 35 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes; cut into 4 wedges.

Rediscovering the Sweetness of Sorghum
by Anne McLeod

Sorghum syrup is well known to most of us Southerners of a certain age. While my family usually favored either the flavorful honey produced by my grandfather’s bees down in Trion, Georgia, or commercial syrups like Mrs. Butterworth’s for our waffles and pancakes, once in a while a bottle or can of sorghum would mysteriously appear at the table, to my delight. If sorghum was available, it was always my sweetener of choice. Not quite as dark as sweet molasses or as bitter as blackstrap, its complex flavor hinted of caramel, a favorite of mine.

I never understood why we did not have sorghum syrup more often when I was growing up. Now I suspect that its taste was one my grandparents and parents associated with the Great Depression, when struggling families in the South relied on it to add flavor and nutrition to meager meals. In Harper Lee’s To Kill a Mockingbird, little Walter Cunningham is invited by Jem to eat lunch with the family because he hasn’t brought a lunch to school, unlike most of the students who have brought their lunches in “molasses buckets.” At that particular time and place in Alabama these pails likely had been used for sorghum molasses or syrup, not sugar cane molasses. At the Finch’s table, after he’s served his plate, Walter shyly requests molasses, and proceeds to cover his lunch with it. Scout is horrified and says so. Calpurnia requests Scout’s presence in the kitchen where she lectures her about proper conduct when hosting a guest. This scene leads up to Atticus’s talk with Scout that evening: “[If] you learn a simple trick, Scout, you’ll get along a lot better with all kinds of folks. You never really understand a person until you consider things from his point of view … until you climb into his skin and walk around in it.”

In the book, Walter’s use of molasses, or what we know as sorghum syrup, draws some kind of class distinction between him and the middle class Finches, but most contemporary readers don’t have the background knowledge to understand exactly why that is. Study guides online suggest Walter was time to seek it out and adopt it as a staple in my kitchen.

It may be that for my family too, this history of sorghum made its taste more complicated than complex, literally and figuratively bittersweet, and it became something to be enjoyed in small nostalgic doses. As for myself, I’m just grateful it’s still found on grocery store shelves in the South, still produced close to home.

Sorghum is often grown for feeding livestock or for ethanol production. Producing syrup from the cane is a multi-step process that is most often undertaken by small farms. But not too small. One blogger reported that he grew some sorghum in hopes of turning out a little syrup and that’s exactly what he got. After hours of intense labor interspersed with boring parts where he had to watch the syrup cook on the stovetop for hours, he reported that his 250 canes produced two quarts of syrup. The fact is, sorghum producers don’t have fancy ad campaigns or put out press releases. It’s easy to pass by those plain jars on the grocery shelf and to reach for the familiar mass produced syrups instead. That’s what I did for a long time. Then a few years ago sorghum was rediscovered by chefs like Hugh Acheson, owner of several restaurants in Georgia. He included recipes for Apple Brown Betty with Sorghum Zabaglione, Sorghum Sweet Potatoes, and Sorghum Ice Cream in his cookbook, A New Turn in the South: Southern Flavors Reinvented for Your Kitchen. His advocacy for sorghum reminded me of how much I enjoyed it. Although I was a little chagrined that a celebrity chef had to remind me about something I knew already, I decided that it was time to seek it out and adopt it as a staple in my kitchen.

My current jar of sorghum syrup was purchased at Fort Payne Feed and Garden Supply, distributed by Cold Creek Honey Company in Hokes Bluff, and produced by a farm in Philadelphia, Mississippi. I’ve served it to my family over pancakes, heated with a tablespoon or so of butter in the microwave, to rave reviews and requests for more. I’m beginning to experiment with substituting sorghum for molasses or other sweeteners in recipes. It’s a classic, and besides producing mass quantities of delicious cookies, it will make your house smell so good, you’ll have no need for fancy scented candles that day.
