Amelia Kirk Lolli Moves West
by Kelly Leavitt

Amelia Magnolia Kirk Lolli is a child of Mentone. Now 87, she has spent her life living in both Mentone and California. The time has come to say “goodbye” to her life in Mentone. In mid-September, she sold her home in the Alpine area and moved west to be with her children, who are located in Oregon, California, and Washington.

In 1933, Amelia was born in Mentone to Frank (1907–1989) and Lora “Mabel” Crow (1906–1998) Kirk. Mabel was born in Mentone to John Blevins (1873–1967) and Ella Magnolia “Maggie” (1883–1977) Crow; the couple had 11 children.

After marrying, Mabel and Frank moved to San Diego, CA, where he enlisted in the U.S. Navy. When Mabel learned she was pregnant with Amelia, Frank was at sea. Mabel returned to Mentone so she could be surrounded by family when their child was born. Because Frank remained at sea for several years, mother and daughter remained in Mentone until 1938, when it was time for young Amelia to attend school. They then relocated to San Diego, where Amelia attended school all the way through college.

Mabel was especially close to her large family, so she and Amelia often traveled to Mentone for the summer season by car or train, and eventually airplane. “We always had our vacations back here,” Amelia told me when I recently visited.

Colorfest 2020 Has Been Cancelled

Colorfest is a favorite tradition in Mentone, when arts, crafts, and food vendors line North Cool Street at and near Brow Park. The festival is presented by the Mentone Area Preservation Association (MAPA), whose board found it necessary to make the decision to cancel the event in July, when preparations typically begin.

We understand everyone’s disappointment. Festival Organizer Sharon Habin needed to give vendors enough advance lead time so they could appropriately arrange their schedules. One of the main issues the board faced when making the decision was that because parking is limited in the area around Brow Park, shuttle buses are required, and it would be impossible to maintain social distancing and keep the buses sanitized. The board feels responsible for the safety of all attendees and vendors, many of who come to Mentone from other communities.

We certainly hope to be able to host the Rhododendron Festival, our other annual festival focusing on handmade arts and crafts that is held annually on the third weekend in May. In 2021, that will be May 15 and 16. Mark your calendars!

Mentone Matters • by Mayor Rob Hammond

Recently I checked in with ALDOT on a completion date for the bridge. At this time they are projecting the end of October. An accident last week reminded us how unsafe the old bridge is and how much the new one is needed.

There have been a couple of personnel changes in the Mentone Police Department.

Officer Ross Greenwood has resigned. Mike Langston of Mentone has been hired (see article in this issue of The Groundhog).

Several weeks ago Mentone was last in DeKalb County in the percentage of citizens who have returned their census forms or filled out one online. It is crucial for Alabama and Mentone to have an accurate count of the number people living here. Municipalities rely on accurate information from the census when applying for a grant. If Mentone is undercounted it could adversely affect a grant application and the amount of funding Mentone could receive. If Alabama is undercounted it could even cost Alabama a seat in Congress.

Change is in the air, in many ways. Fall will soon bring us the changing of the leaves, bringing an often astounding beauty to the landscape. The new bridge in Mentone will be complete this month—certainly a change, after watching its construction over the past several years. The new picket fence on MERF’s Pathway to Community has also changed Mentone’s landscape (even though it looks like it’s always been there!). For the first time in over six months, The Groundhog can report on some activities we can engage in, albeit with safety precautions in place—fundraiser meals, yoga and hikes, the blessing of the animals, and the Creative Spirit Market.

One other change The Groundhog can report is the relocation of Amelia Kirk Lolli. Every month, Amelia took it on herself to distribute up to 200 copies of the paper, delivering them to nursing homes and businesses and mailing them (at her own expense) to friends near and far. We appreciate and will miss her ongoing support.

Certainly we’ll all miss Colorfest this year, as well. I thought I’d share this photo of Fontana and Cynthia Stinson’s prize-winning scarecrow from 2016’s Colorfest. Amidst all this change, the words of Mahatma Gandhi come to mind—"Be the change you wish to see."

Happy October, everyone! —Kelly
Hey everyone—I hope you and yours are all safe and well. There’s not a lot of MAPA news to share this month, other than to let you know that planning and organizing for our upcoming charitable golf tournament (October 10) is going great. Thank you to all who have signed up to play, and to our local business sponsors! I look forward to seeing you there—I will be in the snack cart bringing refreshments out to the course.

Sorry, no adult beverages on board! Please make every effort within your means to trade with our local businesses and support our fantastic community organizations. They provide such a wonderful service to the Mentone area and, especially under current circumstances, really need you. I think it’s ok to pull the mask down momentarily to say, “Hi” and ask, "How are you?” and to smile. Next time I write, we should be blessed with gorgeous fall colors all around. I am really looking forward to that and to putting a match under the paper, sticks and logs in the fireplace. I can smell and feel it in my mind, and soul! Reach out to me at mhoffmanatty@yahoo.com if you feel like it. Mark Hoffman is the president of Mentone Area Preservation Association.

Correction: “Voting 101” by Anne McLeod

The article that appeared in last month’s Groundhog, “Voting 101 in 2020,” included this information regarding photo identification required for absentee ballot requests in Alabama: “If you’re age 65 or older or disabled, you’re exempt from the photo ID requirement [for absentee ballot applications].” This should have read, “If you’re age 65 or older or disabled, you’re exempt from the photo ID requirement if your polling place is NOT physically accessible to you.” In other words, it is the lack of an accessible polling place rather than age or disability alone that invokes an exemption from providing photo identification.

I regret the confusion, particularly on a subject of such importance. Absentee voting in person is going on now at the DeKalb County Courthouse in Fort Payne through Thursday, October 29. Bring your identification if you plan to vote early at the courthouse! The general election itself is November 3.

her. “I became very close to my aunts Dorothy and Grace, my mother’s youngest sisters. They weren’t much older than I was. We would stay at my Aunt Beulah’s house during these trips back to Mentone.”

Recalling those early years, Amelia said, “Sometimes we’d drive back to Mentone in our 1941 Plymouth with ice bags strapped to the front of the car so it would stay cool as we were driving through the heat in the desert. ‘They’d stay cold enough from gas station to gas station, where we’d resupply with new bags of ice.’

Many of these trips were well before the advent of the interstate highway system, so parts of the trip were on dirt roads.

Their dedication to family was such that on the event of Mabel’s parents’ 50th wedding anniversary, Amelia’s parents couldn’t get away from their work in time for the celebration, so they sent young 14-year-old Amelia across country on a Greyhound bus by herself so she could be part of the festivities. (They followed shortly thereafter.)

Amelia shared some of her earliest memories with me. “When my dad was young,” she said, “he lived with E.T. York’s family and would take the cattle down the mountain on the old dirt Wade Gap road. He’d stop at Granny Dollar’s cabin nearby and visit with her. He didn’t write down any of her stories, but they were resolutely passed down.

Granddad Crow used to grind his corn at the mill at Alpine on Little River,” she recalled. “He had acres and acres of land. He planted watermelon and corn and every kind of vegetable. He’d load up his truck and drive to Chattanooga to sell it. When I was very young, I remember a truck used to come by my grandmother’s house. It seemed to have anything and everything you’d need. She’d save her eggs and trade them for whatever she needed off the truck. The truck stopped coming around when I was about 9, during the war.”

Amelia’s father, Frank, was a wood pattern maker for the U.S. Navy. “He built a replica of the Spirit of St. Louis, which was displayed at the Smithsonian Museum in Washington, D.C.,” Amelia said with great pride. “He was an amazing woodworker. He once made my mother a sewing cabinet out of 24 different kinds of inlaid wood. It was a replica of the one that Martha Washington had at Mt. Vernon.”

Frank and Mabel retired to Mentone in the mid-1970s. They built a large and comfortable home in the Alpine area, where many of Amelia’s “Crow” relatives still live. The Kirks hosted family and friends when they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1981 in their home.

Amelia also returned to Mentone. In 1976, she and her husband, Robert Brooks, purchased the DeSoto Lodge (formerly Hal’s Hotel). She changed the name to the Mentone Inn and extensively renovated the building.

Part of the renovations included tearing down an old store that sat where the “town square” is at the corner of AL Highway 117 and Scenic Drive (the current location of the Mentone Farmers Market). The store had been built around the turn of the century by Ed Mason, the son of Mentone’s founder, John Mason. Originally the site of Mentone’s first post office, with Ed Mason serving as the town’s first postmaster, it was eventually known as the Huron Store. By the 1970s, the structure had gone to ruin and rubble, so Amelia had the remnants of the store removed. Per Amelia’s direction, the rock columns currently located around the square were constructed using the original stones that had been the foundation of the structure.

Amelia became an innkeeper, and her mother Mabel helped by greeting people at the front desk and registering them for their stay. Many of these people had decades-long traditions of staying at the inn.

Torn between her life in Mentone and her life in California, Amelia leased out the Inn from 1979 until 1982. She returned in 1982 and ran the Inn as a bed and breakfast. The town had few restaurants at the time, so Amelia served lunch and dinner to the public. In 1984, the Mentone Inn was placed on the Alabama Register of Landmarks and Heritage.

In this same year, Amelia and her mother Mabel were two of the instrumental citizens who began the Mentone Area Preservation Association (MAPA), which publishes The Groundhog. One of the key founders of MAPA was Sandra Padgett, who, with her husband, Ray, had bought the Mentone Springs Hotel in 1980 and began a massive restoration project. Amelia and Sandra became fast friends. The inn and the hotel looked on to each other across AL Highway 117, and one of Amelia’s most endearing memories of the time was waving to Sandra across the street. “We had so much fun together,” said Amelia. “The town was really busy back in those days.” Amelia finally sold the Inn in 1995 and moved back to California.

Her final return to Mentone from California was in 2006. Amelia had inherited her parents’ home, which she has lived in for the past 14 years. She is comforted in knowing that the new owners consider it their “forever home” and love it as much as she does.

When I was leaving her home after our visit, I met her friend Charlene Bence, who had stopped by for a farewell visit. Charlene moved to Mentone in 2018 and told me Amelia was her first friend. “She took me under her wing and shared Mentone’s stories with me,” Charlene said. “She made me feel comfortable and not like an outsider. I sure am going to miss her. Our friendship was short, but it feels like I’m losing part of my family.”

Amelia’s daughters, Cindy and Kathy, helped her pack up a lifetime’s worth of memories. Amelia will primarily reside in Cindy’s home in central Oregon, and will spend time visiting her son, Larry, in Washington and her daughter, Kathy, near Sacramento. “I’d like to bring her back to Mentone for a visit in a few years,” Cindy said.

Amelia remains particularly close to her cousins, Bob and Cathy Crow, Gary and Kathy Crow, and Karen Crow Tate. “I used to know so many people here. Now they’re all gone,” said Amelia. “I’ll miss being here but so many friends of mine have passed away and during this quarantine my friends and I aren’t able to see each other. So, I visit with the people I know on the phone. It’ll be nice to see a different part of the world.”

Eventually, hopefully in the distant future, Amelia will be returned to Mentone after her death, when she will be laid to rest with almost all of her relatives in Little River Cemetery, which will also be the final resting place for her children. Amelia Kirk Lolli will certainly be missed by her many friends and family members. She is a part of a rich, bygone era in Mentone’s history.
SAGE ADVICE:
WELCOME FALL!
by Susan Seago

I don’t know about you but I am so glad to have the fall season finally here. It seems like reward for us dealing with the pandemic, the uncertainty of the future, keeping bills paid and food on the table, summer heat, the bees and mosquitoes, and all that we have endured this year of 2020. Now let’s focus on the magnificent changing leaf colors, much cooler temperatures, and enjoying the great outside and our yards.

The season of FALL stands for four ways to enhance your landscape to better enjoy your surroundings. The first step? Follow a plan. Maybe your yard just needs freshening up with a few new plants or a new hardscape item, such as a bench under a shade tree or a water feature to draw the wildlife. A plan will get your mind into focus and inspire you with a starting point. Get paper and pen and just brainstorm your thoughts and desires for your landscape. If you have a difficult time imagining what you want, enlist a landscape designer to listen to your wants and have him/her create a plan on paper for you. There will be a price for this, but I guarantee it will be worth it.

ADD new shrubs and perennials. Only plan for perennials for now—no annuals. In the spring, there will be spots for annuals to give more color to the area. There are two exceptions for annuals in fall and winter—pansies, of course, and the colorful kale and cabbage. Plant pansies around the kale in a tall planter to really make a nice display.

There are perennials that will bloom through fall and winter. Toad lilies (tricyrtus) have tiny orchid-like purple, pink, or blue blooms along the leaf spine, blooming for about a month. Lenten Rose (hellebore) blooms from October through the new year in many beautiful colors, and the leaves are evergreen, creating the look of a small shrub in spring and summer. (This year, some of our hellebores bloomed into early summer!) Mums are good until frost, but if you leave them in the ground through winter, they will bloom again in spring. After blooming, cut the plant to six inches tall, and it will bloom again in the fall. They are considered perennials. Hint: before blooms open, pinch off every two out of three. The remaining bloom will be much larger. There are hundreds of blooms on each plant, so don’t worry. There will be plenty for a bountiful basket of mums.

Add goldenrod and a few grasses in the flower beds for height and that willowy effect when the wind blows. The seeds of the grasses are good food for birds in winter. Purple asters are a great companion for the goldenrod. Lamb’s ear, especially the larger leaf series, have leaves through some of the winter for that soft look. The browned leaves in late winter need to be removed to allow for new growth.

Consider adding some fall blooming azaleas (the Encore series) and a few beautyberry shrubs. There are light purple, dark purple, and white berried shrubs. They also provide food for the birds. Other great shrubs are the fall-blooming (sasanqua species) and the winter-blooming (japonica species) camellias. Plant one or more of each for continuous flowering until early spring. They do not like the northwestern winds so plant them in a sunny morning east or southeast spot.

Finally, LOVE and enjoy your gardens and landscaping. It has been proven that playing in the dirt is physically good for you, and enjoying nature brings joy and peace to you and your family.
Medicare Open Enrollment
by Lynn Hixon

Medicare Open Enrollment is upon us again. Every year from October 15 through December 7, Medicare beneficiaries have the opportunity to make changes to their Medicare Part D Prescription Drug plan or Medicare Advantage Plan. During this time, beneficiaries can go to SHIP (State Health Insurance Program) to see if the plan they have in 2020 will still be the best plan from them in 2021. By letting SHIP do a free comparison, you have the possibility of substantial savings in premium and drug costs. To have your Part D plan evaluated, call the DeKalb County Council on Aging at 256-845-8590 and ask for Lynn Hixon, the SHIP Counselor.

As the Medicare Open Enrollment approaches, you will notice an increase in mail from insurance companies offering a variety of plans. Beware of possible scams. It is important to remember the following facts:

1. No one should knock on your door to sell you a policy. They should only come to your home if you have made an appointment.
2. Never sign paperwork unless you are 100% sure that is the plan you want.
3. Never give out your Medicare number unless it is a Medicare provider. Protect your Medicare number as you protect your VISA, Master, Debit, and/or Social Security cards.
4. Medicare will NEVER call you on the phone. They will always send a letter requesting that you call them.

Lynn Hixon is the SHIP Counselor at the DeKalb County Council on Aging.

Pivot: to respond differently due to a new circumstance

With the pivot handed us, namely COVID-19, the Little River Arts Council board of directors has worked to find ways to adjust to what has been handed us in order to carry out our mission to the artists and the community. Our outdoor summer music concerts turned into a socially distanced chalk art contest at the community walkway at the MERF House. Sharing is now done through social media and our website. We take necessary precautions to protect people and prevent the spread of the virus.

Using virtual programming as our main tool, we will continue to be able to give artists and musicians a platform and a voice and keep our community strong through sharing their work and talents. We, in essence, will bring art and artists to you in your home. In the months ahead, we will prepare video vignettes of area artists, their process and their work, which you will be able to purchase directly from them. We will present video concerts of musicians filmed at some of our area’s favorite spots, such as Fort Payne’s Opera House. We will offer video tutorials given by local artists who also love to teach, and monthly contests for the public, so you can show your creative expression. All this will be available on our website and on our social media sites—Facebook, Instagram, and YouTube. If you are an artist interested in this opportunity, please contact us through our website at littleriverarts council.org.

Another device we offer to connect artists with opportunity is our Artist Registry. The registry offers artists more awareness through an expanded web presence via our website and social media platforms, in addition to a connection with LRAC members and art patrons. As a member of the LRAC Artist Registry, you will receive exclusive notifications of grant opportunities, events, competitions, and other items that might interest you as an artist. The first 20 artists to join the registry will be specially featured in our launch campaign.

We recently received notification from the Alabama State Council on the Arts that we were awarded a grant in the amount of $1,420 for our fifth annual Creative Spirit Market, so after much discussion and deliberation, the board decided to hold the Market on November 13 and 14. Held at DeSoto State Park’s picnic grounds, Creative Spirit Market is collaboratively hosted by the Arts Council and DeSoto State Park.

Strong COVID-19 safety measures will be implemented for this event. Artist booths will be spread over the expanse of the picnic ground area. Artists will be required to wear masks. We also ask that visitors wear masks and keep the social distancing edict of staying six feet away from each other. We will have musicians playing each hour at the small pavilion over the two-day event, and we will offer an alternative to the Make Art table. With these precautions in place, we have no doubt we can have a successful event for all to enjoy.

Thanks to all the artists who participated in the Global Plein Air Paintout in September. On our website, you can see their completed works from their outdoors vantage points in Fort Payne, Mountain Cove, and Mentone. Some of the artwork is for sale. Please keep in mind that the Little River Arts Council is a public membership organization. You do not have to be an artist to join. All you need is an interest in making art possible for those who live in and visit Mentone and neighboring communities!

Rhea Pirch serves as treasurer and grant writer for the Little River Arts Council.

A picture doesn’t do it justice! This quilt was designed and painted by all the Moon Lake students in the spring of 2019 and purchased at MERF’s 2019 auction. “Thanks to Paula Easter and Cheryl Wilborn (school nurse and quilter) for enabling the students to produce this beautiful piece,” said MERF’s executive director, Sarah Wilcox.

Wow, oh wow! How much fun and what a beautiful piece of community work and artistry! Thank you to every single person that participated in painting pickets, putting up the fence, touching up the fence, clear coating, installing musical instruments, enhancing the landscaping, and willing to use your gifts for the good of the community! There are too many to list but please know that there is tremendous gratitude for each one of you and for your time and talents. If you haven’t spent time at the Pathway to Community (MERF walking trail), fall is the perfect time to enjoy a stroll, to play a musical instrument, to sit on a colorful bench to enjoy the outdoors and landscaping, and to be awed by the artistry of our community! Thank you everyone for your encouragement, your gifts, and your sweat equity. This pathway has only been possible due to our community and funding by the Community Foundation of Northeast Alabama!

October 2020 will be different without MAPA’s wonderful Colorfest and seeing MERF friends at our booth. I wish I played golf so I could participate in MAPA’s golf tournament on Saturday, October 10, at Lil’ Mole Run. It sounds like a great event. The weather will be perfect for a “Leave Me in Mentone” t-shirt, cap, or sweatshirt! Little River Hardware is now carrying the ¼ zip sweatshirt and the colorful Mentone, Mentone, Mentone t-shirt, along with the embroidered shirts and caps. Pick up one while you enjoy their homemade ice cream! DeSoto State Park has the embroidered shirts and hats in the Country Store by the zipline. All proceeds benefit the programs of MERF.

On Thursday, October 8, MERF will be doing a one-time distribution of a week of food for the local children due to funds received for this purpose. The Moon Lake students will be given their food at school and it will include all children in the family. Curbside pick-up for all other families will be at the MERF house that day from 4–6 p.m. on a first-come, first-served basis.

Mountain Framing (Tom Emory) and Mentone Arts and Cultural Center are graciously allowing MERF to place in their galleries the Taste of the Mountain Auction items that are still available. They will each have a purchase-now price and all proceeds will benefit MERF. Stop by Mountain Framing at 1714 AL Highway 117 (just past the Summit Church) and MACC artists gallery at 5951 AL Highway 117 to see the items in person. Or view them at 32auctions.com/mountainframing and 32auctions.com/MACC. These pieces will be available until December 31. Thank you for your continued support!

Sarah Wilcox is Executive Director of MERF, a local non-profit organization whose mission is “to enrich the learning and living of the community by identifying needs and coordinating resources.” If you would like to support our programs, tax-deductible donations can be mailed to P.O. Box 107, Mentone, AL 35984, or you may contribute online at merfhouse.org. Contact Sarah at merf.mentone@gmail.com or 256-635-8193 for more information.

It’s a tribute to our community that the library has continued to function in spite of being closed since mid-March. Thanks to everyone who has continued borrowing books using our curbside service, and to those who have purchased books through our virtual book sale. We’ve had several large donations of books from readers’ collections, and our sale shelves are overflowing. We hope to have a public parking lot sale sometime in October. Keep an eye on our website or join our email list to learn more at moonlakelibrary.org.

Curbside service continues at the library, as well as our virtual book sale. Visit our website to reserve books to check out or to place an order for books to purchase.

Video Discussion
The library will host a discussion of the documentary, “The Social Dilemma,” now available on Netflix. We will meet online via Zoom on Tuesday, October 13, at 6:30 p.m.

The movie explores the rise of social media and its often unseen, pervasive impact on our lives. The filmmakers feature commentary by some of the people who first created social media and their reactions to how their original intent has been co-opted, including their concerns that technology is not only diminishing human creativity, but is manipulating people’s thoughts and opinions.

This video should be of interest to anyone who uses social media such as Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, You Tube, and Pinterest and to anyone who has young people in their lives. We know, and have largely accepted, that our data is mined for the benefit of advertising dollars. This documentary shows us a deeper look into how social media technology influences us—to the degree that many who have watched the film have closed their social media accounts. As the final credits roll, several of the film’s commentators, including former Google design ethicist and Center for Humane Technology co-founder Tristan Harris, state that they severely limit or, in some cases, don’t allow, screen time for their children.

In order to watch the movie without a Netflix account, you can either sign up for a free trial, or watch via Zoom on Sunday, October 11, at 7 p.m. There is no charge for the Zoom viewing. We hope you will join us for this important discussion on October 13. See moonlakelibrary.org to learn how to connect.

Moon Lake Book Club
The Moon Lake Book Club decided to explore historical fiction for our next discussion on Tuesday, October 27, at 6:30 p.m. We will read THE NIGHTINGALE by Kristin Hannah (Macmillan, 2015). From the publisher:

“With courage, grace and powerful insight, bestselling author Kristin Hannah captures the epic panorama of WWII and illuminates an intimate part of history seldom seen: the women’s war. “The Nightingale” tells the stories of two sisters, separated by years and experience, by ideals, passion and circumstance, each embarking on her own dangerous path toward survival, love, and freedom in German-occupied, war-torn France—a heartbreakingly beautiful novel that celebrates the resilience of the human spirit and the durability of women.”

Everyone is welcome to join the book club for our monthly discussions. We meet online via Zoom. The Zoom room will open at 6:15 p.m. for a period of socializing before we begin the discussion. Visit our website or Facebook page to learn how to connect.

DD and Della moved on to evangelistic work in the state of Kentucky and were eventually called to pastor the Church of God in Springfield, IL. From Springfield, they moved to the Church of God in Harvey, IL, where their youngest son, Bob, graduated from high school. In the early 1980s, DD, Della, and Bob were called to pastor the 18th Street Church of God in Louisville, KY. The church began to grow, and DD was able to sell the church property and build a beautiful church across town. However, the stress of this event played too heavily on DD and he was diagnosed with colon cancer in 1983. He was rushed to the hospital, where they removed some of his colon. DD was laid up for a long recuperating period.

After some 30+ years in the ministry, DD decided to retire and moved back to his home state of Alabama. He suffered for two years through his cancer ordeal, and then got down to business with God. He began to pray and fast and two years later, God miraculously healed his body completely. That was over 37 years ago and DD is still going strong, preaching as hard as he ever did. For over 20 years, he has had a weekly TV and radio program in Trenton, GA.

The Church of God Ministry to the Military Division awarded DD a medal for his service and in 2016 the French Government presented DD the French Legion of Honor in recognition of his courage while helping to liberate France during World War II.

For more than 68 years, DD Bain has been proclaiming God’s gospel, whether in a church or over the air waves. God has blessed him and Della, who passed away in 2013, just a month before they were to celebrate their 71st wedding anniversary. Some of his friends call DD the “energizer bunny”—he just keeps going and going!

Dale Bain is “Son #1.”

Many thanks to Don Highfield for sprucing up MAPA’s community bulletin board at the Mentone Post Office. A wood carver by trade, he generously crafted a new dedication sign, painted the posts, and repaired some of the wood.

The bulletin board has been provided as a service by MAPA for the general use of the community since 1982. Feel free to open the back of the board and post your flyer or notice. NEW POLICY: In order to keep notices up to date, write the date you’re posting the flyer in its lower right corner. After two weeks, your flyer will be removed unless you have updated the date. Please be respectful and do not cover up other people’s posts. Thank you!
Mentone Arts & Cultural Center Update by Randy Grider
Gallery & information center to open this month

Staff, volunteers, and board members of the Mentone Arts and Cultural Center made huge strides in recent weeks to meet its goal of opening the doors of the art gallery, visitors’ information center, and gift shop later this month.

Improvements and upgrades to the former Kamama building at 5951 AL Highway 117 include a fresh new look inside and out and needed repairs. In mid-September, local and regional artists started dropping off arts to sell in the gallery. While an exact opening date is still be announced, the third weekend of October is the current target timeframe. Please check our updates on our Facebook page at facebook.com/mentoneartscenter.org.

We also have begun workshops and classes. The first was a digital photography workshop by photographer/instructor John Dersham. In addition to local students, it drew participants from Chelsea and Alexander City.

On October 2–4, artist/instructor Alan R. Young will hold his rescheduled “Watercolor by Drybrush” class as part of our Visiting Artist series. Young is an instructor at the renowned John C. Campbell Folk School. The class has sold out.

Another long-tenured Folk School artist/instructor, Virginia Urani, will hold her beginners’ class, “Getting Your Feet Wet with Watercolor,” on October 26–28. The cost of the class is $195 and all supplies are furnished. Class is limited to seven students. We still have three spots available at press time.

All students must pre-pay to be considered registered for a class. For more information or to reserve your spot in a class, please see contact information below.

Randy Grider is executive director of the Mentone Arts & Cultural Center. He can be reached via email at mentoneartscenter@gmail.com or by phone at 256-674-3366.

Mike Langston was sworn in as Mentone’s newest police officer at Mentone’s Town Hall

Mike Langston Joins Mentone’s Police Force by Kelly Leavitt

Mike Langston is well-known in the Mentone community, as his family’s presence in the town goes back three generations. Mike, age 24, is the son of Nicki and Tina Langston. After attending Moon Lake School, he attended and graduated from Valley Head School. During his senior year, he began working at DeSoto State Park doing general maintenance. After graduating, he held a full-time position at the Park for four years.

In 2018, he attended the Northeast Alabama Law Enforcement Agency and then became a law enforcement officer at the state park. “Growing up,” he said, “I’d always had law enforcement in the back of my mind, and then I took a step towards it.” That step has now led to Mike being a full-time officer on Mentone’s police force. He began working in the middle of August and was sworn in on September 24 by town clerk Kristen Emory.

“I want to work in my own hometown and know the people that I’ll be serving and protecting,” Mike said. “I want to build a good relationship with the town and the people living in it.” When asked if he has aspirations beyond Mentone, Mike said, “To be honest with you, I’ll stay here as long as they’ll have me.”
This photo was taken by Miranda Reese Watson on September 12, when she led a DeSoto State Park Daybreak Kayak Trip up Little River from DeSoto Falls. It shows the new bridge which crosses AL Highway 117 near Camp Skyline. The bridge is replacing the old, more narrow bridge. This project has been long in the planning, and long in the making. Many years ago, concerned citizens met several times with AL-DOT representatives to ensure that the bridge replacement would reflect the beauty and grace of the original bridge, especially from the perspective of the river. Their efforts have certainly paid off.

The new bridge is slated to open in October. The older bridge will become a pedestrian bridge where people can stand over the river to enjoy the view.

What is an environmentalist? No one wants to be stereotypical. Can the term be defined? Growing up in the 80s, I saw that often the proverbial environmentalist was an seen as an irrational person who chained themselves to a tree to keep it from being cut down. Honestly, these people inspired me greatly. I know there are still those who take those measures to make a statement, however I believe techniques have evolved and there is conversation among the environmental community that inspires real change. Everyone is an environmentalist to some degree. If you love to fish, hunt, kayak, or hike, you could fall in the category of “nature lover.” If you are a member of an environmental organization such as The Sierra Club or The Audubon Society and have a good understanding of the importance of environmental regulations, you could be considered an “advocate.” Going one step further on the environmentalist spectrum are the people working on behalf of the environment, such as myself.

There are over 40 river and lake groups in Alabama who are actively addressing environmental issues regarding our state’s 132,000 miles of lakes, rivers and streams. In my book, these people are considered heroes, as they work each day towards solutions for a healthy environment and sustainable future that we all are relying on.

Alabama Rivers Alliance is a partner non-profit organization based in Birmingham that brings the environmental community together and holds an annual conference, the Alabama Water Rally. The event is usually held in the spring at Camp McDowell or Camp Beckwith, however, with COVID-19, this year’s conference was a virtual Zoom meeting in September. Although it was disappointing that we could not be together, I was truly impressed how the small organization of three, pulled off the technical task of managing a four-day virtual conference. From start to finish, the rally was jammed packed full of inspiring messages from advocates from across the state. Subject matter from the conference was everything from a beautiful poetry reading honoring our land and water, to meaningful conversations about how climate change is affecting Alabama’s natural world and southeastern rivers. The 2020 Southern Exposure Films were premiered and groups could learn in depth climate change is affecting Alabama’s natural world and southeastern rivers. The event is usually held in the spring at Camp McDowell or Camp Beckwith, however, with COVID-19, this year’s conference was a virtual Zoom meeting in September. Although it was disappointing that we could not be together, I was truly impressed how the small organization of three, pulled off the technical task of managing a four-day virtual conference. Take Action. Take action in policies that shape our lives and impact Alabama’s environment. The state of Alabama lacks a water management plan, a dam inspection program, and policies that encourage renewable energy and water conservation. I encourage you to get involved with groups who are engaging in positive change when it comes to a sustainable future with clean air, clean water and clean energy. We need more citizens contacting representatives about these issues. Do we want our children and grandchildren to look back on how we didn’t take an active role in preserving the environment for their future? Personal choices like not littering and using less plastic are important, but it’s going to take more people becoming involved in environmental policy.

Angie Shugart is the executive director of Little River Waterkeeper, a 501(c)(3) water advocacy program and a member of the Waterkeeper Alliance, a global clean water movement. Donations are tax deductible. 215 Grand Ave. SW Fort Payne, AL 35967.

My favorite speaker was Dr. Scot Duncan, professor of biology at Birmingham-Southern College. Scot is the author of the award-winning book, “Southern Wonder: Alabama’s Surprising Biodiversity” and he spoke on what inspired his second book about the future of southeastern rivers. Nationally, Alabama is #5 in species diversity and #2 in species extinction. Dr. Duncan’s presentation about the connection between species extinction, dams, and runoff reminded us that everything in nature is connected. He referred to how an extremely beneficial mussel, the purple bankclimber, is now rare and endangered and how at one time, these creatures kept our southeastern rivers clear by filtering the flowing rivers and streams through their shells. Because of dams, its host, the endangered Alabama sturgeon, is limited to a small section of approximately 130 miles of rivers in lower Georgia and Alabama. This is only one example of two connected species. Alabama has lost over 100 species since the industrial revolution. When we damage and alter aquatic ecosystems, we are removing natural ecosystem services that filter and clean our water naturally.

The takeaway message from Dr. Duncan and the other incredible speakers was: Take Action. Take action in policies that shape our lives and impact Alabama’s environment. The state of Alabama lacks a water management plan, a dam inspection program, and policies that encourage renewable energy and water conservation. I encourage you to get involved with groups who are engaging in positive change when it comes to a sustainable future with clean air, clean water and clean energy. We need more citizens contacting representatives about these issues. The river moves from land to water to land, in and out of organisms, reminding us what native peoples have never forgotten: that you cannot separate the land from the water, or the people from the land. —Lynn Culbreath Noel

Erik Larson’s The Splendid and the Vile: A Saga of Churchill, Family, and Defiance During the Blitz

Erik Larson, author of “The Devil in the White City,” “In the Garden of Beasts,” “Dead Wake,” and other narrative nonfiction bestsellers, takes readers of The Splendid and the Vile to London just as Hitler’s bombs begin to pound the city.

Much of the book focuses on Winston Churchill, the new Prime Minister, as well as his family, friends, and associates. Knowing now how the war would end, it is easy to forget the uncertainty that existed at its start. Larson describes a conversation between Churchill and his police guardian Inspector Thompson the day the king called him to Buckingham Palace to ask that he replace resigning Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and form a new government. As the two men parted, Churchill told Thompson, “All I hope is that it is not too late….i am very much afraid that it is. But we can only do our best, and give the rest of what we have—whatever there may be left to us.”

Winston Churchill emerged during the Blitz as a heroic and unifying leader, who never minimized the dangers facing Britain. Instead he called on the people to rise to the challenge, even as their homes and public spaces were shattered by bombs. Londoners darkened windows at night with curtains to keep enemy bombers from seeing any light that could become a target and sheltered in Underground stations during raids.

Two years before the war began, a group called Mass-Observation initiated a popular journaling project in which British citizens described their everyday lives and routines. When their lives were upended by the war, these journals chronicled the stories of ordinary people enduring extraordinary times. Larson uses short excerpts from these journals throughout the book, sometimes as stand-alone short chapters. “I stopped typing for two minutes to listen to an extra noisy enemy plane. It dropped a bomb which puffed my curtains in and made the house shiver (I am in bed under the roof) and now the guns are galumphing at its back. There are craters at the bottom of my garden, and a small unexploded bomb.” And yet diarist Olivia Cockett described her overall mood as “cheerful.”

“The Splendid and the Vile” includes enough military history to help readers grasp the strategic importance of events, including fascinating accounts of emerging technologies both sides tried to keep secret. But the most interesting parts of the book are the characters, among them Churchill’s private secretary John Colville who kept a secret diary of his years working for a demanding yet inspiring boss; Pamela Churchill, married to Winston’s irresponsible son whose gambling debts and alcoholism threatened their relationship; German pilot Adolf Galland, who received cigars after the war as a gift from an RAF hero.

Larson has a gift for humanizing even the most privileged. Reading this book in spring of this year as the coronavirus pandemic wreaked havoc with the supply chain here in the U.S. and created a shortage of toilet paper, I felt for King George VI who was reduced to making discreet requests from the British embassy in Washington for “a certain type of paper which is made in America and is un procurable here. A packet or two of 500 sheets at intervals would be most acceptable.”

“The Splendid and the Vile” (Crown, 2020) by Erik Larson is itself splendid storytelling and is available for checkout from the Moon Lake Community Library.

Finding Common Ground
by Dennis Hessler

A dear old friend of mine in Pensacola swears this story is true. She was helping a Sunday school teacher who was working with a class of 3rd and 4th-grade children. The topic was the omnipresence of the Lord.

“Is God in Pensacola?” asked the teacher.

“Yes!” all the kids intoned in unison.

“Is God in Florida?” she continued, to make her point.

“Yes!” they all cried out, warming to the game.

“And is God in Alabama?”

“No–ooo!” the kids said, without any prompting.

I’ll leave it to the theologians to determine where the Almighty resides and if one of those places might be Alabama. Those of us who live in Mentone and happen to catch a glimpse of the valley on an early fall morning are pretty sure He spends some time in this part of Alabama, anyway.

But I’ve discovered there are some pretty fierce local, sports and brand allegiances attached to folks in the South and, I might add, especially in Alabama.

I grew up in Northern Ohio so no one in Alabama—or Florida, for that matter—has mistaken me for a local boy. I have a good friend in Pensacola who’s as Irish as a sheleighly and is a transplanted Bostonian. If you think I have problems assimilating into the Southern culture, you can imagine how he feels.

When I first moved to Mentone some 14 years ago, I relied on my builder, Jackie, to help me out if I had questions about the area. When I asked him if he could recommend a good plumber, he gave me a name, then added, “He’s a Yankee, like you. But he’s good.”

I ignored this slight to the victors of the recent unpleasantness between North and South. From Jackie, that was high praise indeed, though grudgingly given. He was right, though. The guy fixed my leak.

A few years ago, my wife bought a piece of furniture from a dealer in Summerville, just across the border in Georgia. The seller said she’d have her husband deliver it in his truck and we gave her directions and awaited delivery.

Now let me add—just so you don’t think I’m a complete city slicker—that I have my own truck, although it wasn’t quite up to the job of delivering this piece of furniture. My sister-in-law has innately described it as a “toy truck,” which annoyed me until I saw the vehicles bounding up and down the roads of Lookout Mountain. My truck does a pretty good job of bringing home a Christmas tree or hauling a dozen bags of pine bark mulch, but mostly I just throw groceries in the back.

But around Mentone, the real trucks are usually hauling an additional mode of transportation on the truck bed and it’s often strapped down with fat, rusted chains. As these trucks bounce down County Road 106, they toss off chunks of mud the size of small northeastern states.

When we first visited here, I was pleased to realize that once you got off Highway 117, the locals were likely to wave at you as the cars passed. When I was in my “toy truck,” this wave would sometimes be accompanied with a sad, tolerant smile. I got the same thing when I stopped for lunch at the Tigers Inn in Valley Head and ordered a club sandwich. I could almost hear the cooks in the back saying something like, “The Yankee ordered a club sandwich, bless his heart.”

The point is, my fellow Mentonians don’t pay much attention to my truck and I’ve learned to deal with it. So when the guy in the real truck brought my furniture to the cabin AND pulled in just a little too far AND sunk into my soft septic field AND started spinning his wheels flinging I-didn’t-want-to-know-what into the air, there was no way I was getting him out. I knew it was time to call Jackie again.

He came over right away, took the measure of the problem in an instant and started shaking his head at the glum-looking driver.

“As soon as I saw that [Georgia] license plate and that Ford truck [Jackie’s a Chevy man], I wasn’t surprised this happened.”

If Jackie seemed a little testy, I should add that it was early on a Friday evening and who wants to be called away at that day and time to yank a truck out of a septic field? I couldn’t see into Jackie’s truck bed but my Georgia driver’s truck had all kinds of big tools and parts of tools. I wasn’t sure what you did with some of them, but I figured any one could put a big dent into someone’s head, if the tool user—even if he was from Georgia—got angry enough.

But Jackie was just messing with him. He smiled, grabbed one of his own rusty tools and pulled that big ol’ Georgia Ford out of the hole nice as you please, then came back a week later and filled the hole for me. The two of them—by way of a truce, I imagine—walked around my yard and explained the subtle distinctions between black oaks and white oaks and a dozen different other trees whose names I can’t remember right now. It appears that such trees grow on both sides of the border.

After they left, I returned to my favorite rocking chair on the front porch, lit my cigar, sat back to consider the experience. The lesson I took from it all was simply this. If two people from such different backgrounds (Alabama and Georgia) and widely disparate world views (Ford and Chevy) could come together and make nice, the world just might survive after all.

And maybe—just, maybe—that proves the Lord lives in Alabama too.
